JOSEPH AND HIS BRETHREN.

We have had lying on our table for the past few weeks a couple of letters from "Yankton" at Fort Abercrombie, reviewing the replies made by C. Harmia and Major Rose to certain charges published by him in this paper against Major J. R. Brown, chief of scouts at Fort Wadsworth. Accompanying one of these letters are eleven affidavits of scouts who had been employed by Major Brown, in support of the charges affecting his official integrity, and setting forth with great prolixity of detail his various aberrations from the strict path of virtue. We have not published these letters and accompanying documents; first, because they would cover a whole broadside of the Press; secondly, because their publication would only provoke rejoinder and surrejoinder in endless succession; thirdly, because the subject is not interesting enough to most of our readers to justify the appropriation of so much space; and finally, because the columns of a public journal are not the proper place to try Government officers for their delinquencies unless no other and more efficacious remedy is available.

We would therefore, by all means advise Yankton to prefer his accusations through the ordinary military channels; for we have not time, nor our readers patience, to wade through the mass of testimony on both sides, which, in order to reach any definite result, must be ultimately sifted and weighed by a military court. We desire to say that Yankton explicitly denies that he intended to cast any reflection on Major Rose, whom he entirely exonerates from any complicity in or knowledge of the transactions to which he refers. We have no doubt, however, that, as old Major Bagstock used to say of himself, "Old Joe is sly." The affidavits go to show by a variety of specifications that he has been in the habit of employing the scouts, and the Government property in his hands, largely for his personal use and behoof, as well as that he has traded considerably in vouchers, paying the scouts goods instead of money, &c., &c. &c. It is undeniable, however, that Joseph's Indian scouts have recently formed a very efficient detective and protective force. They have this Spring done more to ferret out and kill hostile Indians than our whole military force besides. No white soldier has been able to hunt down a hostile Indian. Joseph's scouts have killed thirteen, including the assassins of the Jewett family. This, of course, is no excuse for peculation, if peculation there be. But it shows at any rate that Joseph has been using his scouts for other purposes besides his own private profit, and that he has used them effectively.

HOMES FOR DISABLED SOLDIERS AND SOLDIER'S ORPHANS.

On the 28 inst, at Milwaukee, the people of Wisconsin open a grand fair for the purpose of endowing a Home for the disabled soldier's of that State. The proceeds are expected to reach a quarter of a million of dollars. This is, we understand, the first effort of the kind made in any State. The project is sustained by an unanimity and enthusiasm on the part of people which promises its complete success. We have long had it in mind to urge similar action upon the people of Minnesota, and have hoped that the universal good feeling inspired by the expected return of our disbanded soldiers, might be directed to the accomplishment of two great and beneficial enterprises for their benefit and that of the families of their fallen comrades—the endowment of a home for the disabled soldiers, and of an asylum for the orphans of those who have fallen by disease or battle in the military service.

In this way we should best execute the sacred legacy of duty and of honor which the martyred Lincoln left to his countrymen in the fervent and touching invocation which closes his last inaugural—"to care for those who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphan."

These two institutions would form monuments, more enduring than marble or brass, of the gratitude of the people to their defenders, and in no other form could the debt we owe them be so well repaid.

Gov. Miller made some recommendations upon this subject in his last message to which he complains the Legislature paid but little heed. But Legislatures are, at best, not very enterprising bodies. Their functions are rather to follow than to lead public sentiment, and public sentiment must have had a very clear and emphatic expression, before they feel authorized to initiate measures requiring considerable expenditures.

Now a great State Fair for the endowment of homes for disabled soldiers and soldiers' orphans would not only lay a broad pecuniary foundation for these institutions, but it would do more than any thing else to arouse and organize public sentiment in favor of all necessary legislation to build up and support the superstructure.

We throw out the naked suggestion now, without urging at this time the many obvious considerations which plead in its behalf, in the hope that it may fall like good seed on fruitful ground and lead to immediate and active measures for the two classes of sufferers by the war most deserving of our sympathy and our care.

Discharging Convalescent Soldiers.

J. B. Gilman, military agent for this State at Louisville, reports to Governor Miller under date of June 1, 1865, as follows:

Convalescents having descriptive lists are being discharged as fast as their papers can be made out. I think that within two weeks nearly all of this class of men in hospitals here, or on light duty, will be enroute to their homes—citizens once more.

CAPT. FISK'S EMIGRATION PROJECT.

We call attention to an extended notice of Capt. Fisk's Idaho emigration project, which we copy elsewhere from the Washington Chronicle. Benjamin Thompson, Esq., of this city, is empowered to act as the agent of the company, of which a circular states John Nininger is President, and will reply to communications in reference to the details of the project.

Capt. Fisk represents to the Chronicle that several thousand persons, disbanded soldiers, officers and others, are preparing to follow him to Idaho. If this be so, they will form a rather formidable army, and can safely bid defiance to the Sioux.

It will be seen that Capt. Fisk is going to establish his base of supplies in this city, where he is to arrive on the tenth. If several thousand persons are to be supplied with transportation, provisions, &c., at this point, there will be likely to be a good deal of agitation in the horse market; wagons will have an upward tendency, and salt pork and hard tack will be decidedly stringent. We would not, however, advise dealers in these commodities to go into "conniption fits" until the Captain arrives.

This emigration movement reminds us that a company has been formed in Montana of which our friend N. P. Langford is President, for the purpose of opening up a wagon road from Virginia City, by a short and practicable route to Minnesota and Iowa. The company is establishing ferries across the Big Stone, Clark's Fork and Yellow Stone, and a road is being opened to the mouth of the Yellow Stone, with branches to Fort Benton, Milk river, etc., and bridges are being built across the smaller streams where needed. These improvements will greatly facilitate emigration to the New El Dorado from this direction, and will shorten the distance by the present circuitous route some seven or eight hundred miles.

WAR RECORD OF MINNESOTA.

We are glad to learn that two gentlemen so competent for the task as Messrs. I. V. D. Heard and Joseph McCloud have undertaken to prepare a history of the part performed by the soldiers of Minnesota, in the war now so happily closed. The former is a gentleman of considerable literary ability, and possessing other qualities which should lead us to expect that his part of the work would be at least a conscientious chronicle of facts, while his collaborator is an artist of merit, and both together are admirably fitted to produce a graphic record, with pen and pencil, of the glorious deeds of our gallant soldiers. We refer our many readers to their advertisement, and bespeak for them all possible assistance from those who have participated in the scenes they desire to portray.

The Rebellion is crushed, sure enough Clement L. Vallandigham has been heard from. In a letter addressed to somebody, which fills three columns of the Chicago Times, he apologises rather laboriously for his traitorous course, on the ground that he was logically following the principles of "the fathers,"—he did not say "in a horn," but allows that cornonous conclusion to suggest itself to the reader. He confesses, however, that he was wrong about the war for the Union. He rejoices (nothing said here either about the horn) that Slavery is destroyed and the Union saved; sees at present no reason why the Democracy should not give a cordial support to President Johnson in his efforts to restore the prosperity of the country, under the Constitution, and declares that the Southern States without slavery will, with perhaps two or three exceptions, "become more populous, prosperous and powerful than any other section." This is about the most convincing proof we have seen that the Rebellion has, as Sherman said, "gone up."

A special says:

Gov. Brown, of Georgia, is as docile and cringing as a whipped cur. In conversation this morning with the writer of this paragraph, he then defined his position on the question of unconditional submission. "We appealed to the arbitrament of arms, we were defeated. It is now our duty, as well as our policy, to submit to the decision effected by the sword."

Now it strikes us, that so far from being docile or cringing, the above sentiment is an eminently manly one. If Gov. Brown had really been fighting for liberty, religious or civil, or for any absolute principle of right, submission might be craven. But he had been fighting simply for a separate political system, rather to the lessening than the increase of liberty. The people of the South can, even from the secessionist point of view, accept the result of the contest—the fait accompli—without degradation, and therefore without subjecting themselves to an imputation of cowardice. Such paragraphs as that we quote are the offspring of mean minds.

The New York Times says that at the Anti-Slavery Convention in Boston Wendell Phillips said:

There was but one way in which the people could still hold the helm of affairs, and that was a declaration of the repudiation of the entire war debt. Such a party would have his voice and vote until God called him home.

We have never had any great respect for Mr. Phillip's statesmanship; but he has never done anything to raise a suspicion that he is precisely a madman or a scoundrel, and the man who gave utterance to the above atrocious sentiment must be both morally idiotic and mentally insane—a villain gone mad. We therefore don't believe Mr. Phillips ever said anything of the kind.

President Johnson has reappointed Rev. Edward D. Neill, formerly of this city, as his Secretary to sign land patents—the same position he held under Mr. Lincoln.

—A well known Mississippi river steamer, the Magenta, has been seized at St. Louis by General Pope, and her officers placed under arrest, for flagrant acts of disloyalty, on the trip from New Orleans to that port.

SOUTH CAROLINA CONQUERED.

Remarkable Article from a Columbia Paper.

An Argument in Favor of Unconditional Surrender.

From the Columbia (S. C.) Phoenix, May 18.

There is no good pretext for our conqueror keeping up any longer the shows and exercises of war in our country. On the part of the people of this State, and of every Southern State this side of the Mississippi, all struggle has ceased. There are no embodied parties anywhere making the slightest resistance. Our armies have been thrown down. We have neither arms nor munitions of war. No banner of the Confederacy now floats the sky. No commander calls upon troops either for flight or fight. The soldiers, in scattered groups, footsore, weary, in rags, and without means or money, are wending their weary ways homeward, to homes in ashes, doubtful of their future bread, and certainly without heart or hope in any prolongation of war or renewal of struggle. In this condition of things—a condition of things which is patent to all eyes, and can be questioned by none—the distribution of armed garrisons among the people throughout the country, and from the seaboard to the mountains, seems to be wholly without use, pretext or necessity, and may possibly lead to mischief. The country, in the first place, is in no condition to feed its own people, and we know too well the characteristics of all soldiers quartered among a conquered people, to suppose that they will forbear to lay hands upon all they can find, without considering the difference between the meum et teum—the mine, and thine. A rude soldier—an arrogant, overbearing captain or lieutenant—may goad, by his persecutions, the most quiet people into phrenzy, and lead to acts of desperation which will then be construed into acts of war and rebellion, and bring punishment on the heads of the innocent and unoffending. We need hardly call upon our people to submit patiently—retire to their several homes—succumb to a fortune against which they have been unable to contend, and seek to achieve the ends of life in the obscurities of a private and purely domestic condition. They wish only the privilege to do this. Let them work at their own grounds, if allowed to do so content to rear cabbages and potatoes, and forbear all considerations of politics, nor ask again what is done or doing in Congress, nor care to know who is in power, or who shall win the present plaudits of Demos. Let the farmer substitute the potato-making for the President making interest, and the craftsman attend to his work bench. "Ne sutor ultra crepidam," will prove a saving rule for those who have vainly striven to save themselves by quitting the last, the saw, the anvil and the hoe. Briefly, let them humble themselves to a state which the will of God seems to have decreed as fitting their deserts. In this humility they may probably deserve a more gracious countenance in future from that great Dispenser of judgment who rules the world now, however invisible and inscrutable, even as he did six thousand years ago.

It will be hardly possible for a people to remain at peace, or to be allowed to do so, with armed and probably insolent garrisons quartered among them. Even if the provocations of power, dressed in brief authority, do not goad them to desperation, they will perpetually tend to raise discontent, to induce feverish restlessness—a perpetual anxiety—a neglect of all regular habits of industry, and a sense of surveillance and annoyance, which, in the end, must drive them into exile. So wholly unaccustomed have the American people been to this sort of restraint and surveillance that it will prove unendurable, and they will seek in other lands that refuge, that repose and quiet, that sense of security, which is denied them in their ancient homes.

In the absence of all shows of war, and of all the materials for the struggle; in the spectacle everywhere of a people submitting to a fortune which, however revolting to their pride, is forced upon them by their necessities, in the state of a country torn, ravaged, bleeding and destitute, what is needed over all is rest, quiet, time for recuperation, and the concentration of their energies upon the daily duties of domestic life. It may be that this recuperation is the very thing which our conquerors would deny. It may be that they would prefer that we should not recover, and that a hard policy will decree that, in order to prevent future disaffection we shall be kept as hewers of wood and drawers of water, under a sort of Egyptian bondage. It may be that the dignities of State are to be thrown away, and, reduced to a territorial condition, we are to be governed by straps sent from abroad. To this, too, we shall, perhaps, be compelled to resign ourselves; but, at all events, the sooner we are taught what our future status is to be the better. We shall then the sooner be able to decide whether the refugee shall return to his home, prepared to recover what he can from the wreck, and repair by labor the losses of fortune, or whether he shall abandon it forever—preferring escape to a foreign rule and region rather than struggle on in toils in that in which he labors under a constant sense of equal insecurity and shame. Our conquerors cannot deny us the privilege of exile, having reduced us below the condition of humanity.

Meanwhile we renew our exhortations to our people to subside quietly from view—to avoid the highway and the thoroughfare; avoid all discussion, whether of past or future; submit to the inexorable fate which seems to have the sanction of the Most High God, and striving only after the support of their families, and the peace of the household and the improvement equally of the domestic mind and condition, afford no pretext to their conquerors which shall give any reasoning justification to a resumption of conflict or the increased usurpation of power. Let us submit with what fortitude and patience we can command, until God shall be pleased to heal our hurts of house and fortune. Raiding parties for mere plunder will be construed into guerrilla parties seeking renewal of war, and this pretext will be eagerly seized upon by thousands at the North, to whom the sudden suspension of hostilities is a serious loss. Speculators will be glad to renew their games, practising with their own wits upon the fluctuating moods of the country; soldiers will be glad of the pretext for rifling defenceless towns and villages; and thousands of jackals, in the wake of the tiger, will rush along our highways, gleaning whatever shall remain in the stores of the miserable population. Let us carefully abstain from all things—from all shows of conduct—which shall furnish arguments to such classes of spoilers. Let us submit in good faith to a condition which we have not been able to avert, nor previously murmur and fret like spoiled children over the loss of those possessions which, it seems, we lacked the adequate manhood to defend.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Authoritative Denial of Stanton's Resignation—The Privilege of Habeas Corpus to be Restored—Alabama.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 7, 1865.

Some persons may be interested in learning that the Chronicle of-day in order to set at rest what it calls a malignant falsehood, says on authority of Mr Stanton himself, that he has not resigned, that it is not known he has determined to leave the Cabinet very soon, and that he has had no disputes, no differences, no collision with President Johnson. His relations with the President are of the most cordial, and friendly character, and the President's relations with Mr Stanton are entirely agreeable and confidential. He has never had a difference much less a collision with his Secretary of War, nor has he given such assurance to any one, Major General or otherwise, as has been attributed to him; and the Chronicle also says this latter statement is made by the authority of President Johnson. The Secretary of the Treasury has divided Mississippi, South and North Carolina into districts, for the collection of internal taxes.

The Tribune announces that the President will soon issue a proclamation restoring the privilege of habeas corpus and ordering a very general clearance of the military prisons.

The Post's Washington special says the delegation from Alabama, left for home to-day. It is understood they did not succeed in obtaining permission for the rebel Legislatures to re-assemble. A provisional government for that State will be appointed.

WASHINGTON, June 7.

Fred A. Sawyer has been appointed Collector of International Revenue for the city of Charleston, S. C. Mr. Sawyer is a native of Boston, but for some time past has occupied the position of superintendent of the Public Schools of Charleston.

Geo. W. Jones, of Tennessee, did not come to Washington as reported, at the request of the President, but was permitted to do so on his own personally liberty.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Demand for Indemnity—Action of France—The Markets.

FARTHER POINT, June 6.

The North American from London, 2:30 P. M., the 25th via, Londonderry, 26th, arrived at Farther Point at half past 9 o'clock this morning.

The London Owl says the question of paying indemnity for losses by the Alabama depredations has reached an unpleasant point. In reply to the Washington Government the British Cabinet has intimated that it is not intended to pay these demands, but international law is on our side. The rejoinder from Washington alludes to compensation. The Owl calls for a firm joint action by England and France in defense of the public laws. The statements of this eccentric journal have recently proved far less reliable than they used to be.

The Paris Moniteur of the 24th publishes an article confirming the revocation of the order limiting the stay of Federal vessels in foreign ports to twenty-four hours, and says France has also announced that she will have to raise all other restrictions as soon as the Washington Cabinet shall cease to exercise an exceptional right which its quality as a belligerent power enables it to claim on the sea toward neutrals. The Moniteur then reverts to fully satisfactory assurances of Mr Lincoln some days before his death, and adds that the latest news from America affords reason to believe that Mr. Johnson intends to follow the wise policy of his predecessor.

HALIFAX, June 7.

The Africa from Liverpool the 27th by way of Queenstown, the 28th, has arrived here with two days later news.

THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL.

Attempt to Break Down a Witness for the Prosecution.

WASHINGTON, June 7.

Mr. Ewing, counsel for Dr. Mudd, asked the privilege of recalling Daniel J. Thomas, for cross examination on a single point, wishing to prove that his testimony was given from corrupt motives, and expecting to show through five or six of his neighbors that by his own declaration, made since he appeared on the stand, for the prosecution, that he did it with the hope and expectation of large rewards. That he stated to Eli J. Watson that if he could get certificates from him and others that he was the first person who gave information which led to the arrest of Mudd, he would get a reward of $25,000; and that he stated to J. Richards, Benjamin J. Taylor, Geo. Lynch, Samuel Watson and William Watson, that Mudd would be convicted, and if they would give him the certificate he desired, he would receive a reward of $10,000, etc.

Prosecution making no objection Thomas was recalled and cross examined. He testified that he was at Horse Heads on the 1st of June with John R. Richards, Benjamin J. Tyler, George Lynch, Samuel Watson and William Watson, when James R. Richards a magistrate rode up; did not say to Richards I had been asking the gentleman for certificates for proofs of the fact that I was the first person who gave information leading to the arrest of Mudd, neither did I say I had stated to them that they would be convicted and if they gave such certificate and Mudd should be convicted I would secure a reward of $10,000. I did not say to any of the persons in whose company I then was what I have just denied saying to Mr. Richards. I never expected to receive a cent for what I might do in this case as a witness.

New York Bank Suits.

NEW YORK, June 6.

In the meeting of the Board of Supervisors this afternoon the Committee of the Whole to whom was referred the subject of bank suits, in which many of the city banks sued the county for taxes levied on those institutions in 1863, reported in favor of refunding the taxes levied at that time, with interest and costs of suits. The aggregate of these claims with costs, amounts to over $300,000.

Trade in Wilmington.

NEW YORK, June 7.

The Wilmington Herald of the 3d inst says "It is surprising to those who have been in the city since its occupation by the Union army, and who formed a very unfavorable estimate of the amount of articles of trade here, to witness the Cart and Dray loads of Cotton, Rosin, &c. now being stored in the warehouses for shipment to the Southern market. Where it comes from no one knows. Ten days ago all kinds of vehicles for hauling could be found in idleness on the streets, but since the removal of the restrictions on trade not one is to be seen. All are busy hauling."

Gen. Grant in New York.

NEW YORK, June 7.

The pressure to see Gen. Grant this morning was so great, that after appearing on the balcony in front of the Astor House, all visitors, except ladies were denied. After dining this afternoon with prominent citizens, he is to have a ride through Central Park. This evening he attends a meeting at Cooper's Institute, and afterwards the 7th regiment will serenade him.

Doubtful Report of Juarez's Defeat.

NEW YORK, June 7.

The Courier des Etats Unis claims to have intelligence that the town of Chihuahua, which has been for some time the seat of the Republican Government of Mexico, has been occupied by the French General Aymar, and that Juarez is on the way to the United States. No such news was received from Havana yesterday.

THE DEACON'S APOLOGY.

A Baptist brother down South, was brought before the church on a charge of drunkenness, and was asked what he had to answer to the charge.

He replied that he was guilty, but hoped, in view of the circumstances he would be excused.

"I may have took a leetle too much sperits, breethren, but I've bin sorely afflicted," he said. "In the first place my old bay mare whom I set so much store by, was tuck away to crap time-eh, and in the next place he tuck from me my wife, whom I set more store by if possible, than by the old bay mare eh, and ef I took a leetle too much of the critter to boost my sperits up, I hope my breethren will excuse me-eh.' And they did.

OUR LATE PRESIDENT.

Interesting Reminiscences of a French Writer.

In the last number of the Revue des Deux Mondes appears an interesting article on President Lincoln. The writer is M. Auguste Laugel, whose pen has often, and never without profit to his readers, contributed to the same periodical. M. Laugel paid a visit to Washington some months ago, and had several opportunities of seeing the late President in private as well as in public. He gives much information on the condition of the United States when the war broke out, and on the career of Mr. Lincoln before and after his elevation to the Presidency; but the most attractive passages are those which are of a personal character. The following scene, for instance, is graphically sketched:

"'Come and see St. Louis under the oak of Vincennes,' said my friend Chas. Sumner one day to me. He told me that the President opened once a week, no matter how pressing his occupations, his Cabinet to all who desired to address a petition or claim to him. We set out for the White House, and entered Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet, where, without being announced, we took our places, with a dozen people who were waiting for their turn. The walls were covered with large maps representing the divers places where the war was going on. Over the chimney hung a portrait of President Jackson—the features dry and harsh, and bearing the impress of extreme energy. Over the marble there was a photographic likeness, beautifully done—it was that of John Bright, the eloquent defender of the American Union in the British Parliament. Through two spacious windows I could see the white lines of the Potomac, the winding uplands of Maryland, and the half hidden obelisk of Washington standing in sharp relief to the blue sky. Between the two windows stood a huge writing table, before which the President was seated. He did not perceive Mr. Sumner, being at the moment engaged in talking with some petitioner, whom he dismissed soon after we entered. The usher—who, by the way, was dressed like everybody else—brought forward a woman. She appeared to be in deep affliction, and it was with difficulty that she could explain that her husband was a soldier in the regular army, that he had served for a long term and now asked for leave to quit his regiment and return to support his family. She got more and more embarrassed as she spoke. 'Let me help you,' said Mr. Lincoln, kindly, and thereupon he put questions to her with the method and clearness of a lawyer. On the luminous rectangle of the window, through which poured a flood of sunshine, his profile appeared dark; with the right hand he often pushed up his hair, which made it stand straight, or changed it into disordered tufts. While he spoke all the muscles of the face put in movement gave an angular and strange contour to his head, which had some resemblance to that of Mephistopheles; but his voice had all the softness of the father. After putting some questions to the poor woman, he said, 'I can't, myself, grant you what you ask. I have the right of disbanding all the armies of the Union,' he added, with a strange laugh, 'but I cannot give a single soldier his discharge. Only the Colonel of your husband's regiment can do what you want.' The woman deplored her poverty. She had never, she said, suffered so much. 'Madam,' said Mr. Lincoln, deepening to a tone of slow and impressive solemnity, 'I share your sorrow; but remember that we all of us, as we are, have never suffered what we now suffer. We have all of us our burdens to bear.' He then leaned towards her, and for some time we only heard the murmur of the two voices. I saw him write a few words on a piece of paper and give to the woman; he then dismissed her with the forms of the most scrupulous politeness. The next who advanced was a young man, who held out his hand to the President, and said with a loud voice, 'As for me, I have only come to shake hands with Abraham Lincoln.' 'Much obliged, sir,' said the President, offering his big hand, 'this is our day for business.'"

Mr. Lincoln, says M. Laugel, possessed a most tender and compassionate heart, and one would say he wore in his soul mourning for all who perished during the terrible years of his Presidency.

"A sadness which was almost superhuman passed now and then over his brow, on which the wrinkles had deepened into furrows—on those strange features where the hearty laugh of other days had become a sort of painful grimace. I remember meeting the President one evening toward nightfall. He was just leaving the White House, and, according to his habit, was going to the War Office to get news. There was no body with him, though he had often been recommended not to go out alone; but he despised danger and had a horror of constraint. With his plaid folded around him against the cold, he moved slowly on, lost in reverie, like a tall phantom. I was struck with the pensive and suffering expression of his face. Agitation and anxiety had gradually bent, and at last broken, that stout and rustic nature, and worn the nerves of steel of the giant. For four long years he never knew what an hour of repose was. Even his receptions were horrible sufferings. When the saloons of the White House were open, the tide of visitors rolled on without stopping before him, and his big and honest hand grasped all those that were held out to him. The slave of the American people, he was condemned to stay at Washington when everybody else had fled from its heat and dust. He only escaped in search of a little verdure to the smiling slopes where the President's country house is situated by the side of the Soldiers' Home—the asylum where the State keeps a few invalids since the Mexican war. In his walks he saw the beautiful woods cut down to make room for the parapets and glacis of the forts; and at a short distance was the large burial ground, where ten thousand graves, all arranged in lines, were still fresh. I have seen amidst these woods this city of the dead, with its long parallels of alleys, its ten thousand white stones, all alike, and each one marked with the name of a soldier. One seems to pass in review these interminable ranks, the sameness of which has something terrible. These soldiers, who now sleep in an order which nothing will trouble more, Mr. Lincoln had beheld young, vigorous, and full of health!"

While at Washington M. Laugel had the honor of an invitation to accompany Mr. Lincoln, to see "Lear" performed, to Ford's play-house, and in the same box where he was so soon after foully murdered:

"The Washington theatre is small and in a state of decay. You reached the President's box by an open passage behind the galleries, and you had only to open a door and draw a curtain to enter. The front of the box was covered with a piece of red velvet, but the interior was not covered with either cloth or velvet. I was, as may be supposed, more occupied with the President than the performance. He, however, listened with attention, though he knew the play by heart. He followed all the incidents of it with the greatest interest, and talked with Mr. Sumner and myself only between the acts. His second son, a boy of eleven, was near him, and Mr. Lincoln held him nearly the whole time, leaning on him, and often pressed the laughing or astonished face of the child on his broad chest. To his many questions he replied with the greatest patience. Certain allusions of King Lear to the sorrows of paternity caused a cloud to pass over the President's brow, for he had lost a young child at the White House, and never was consoled. I may be pardoned for dwelling on recollections so personal, which, under other circumstances, I should communicate only to a few friends; for it was on that very spot where I saw him with his child and his friends, that death struck down one so full of meekness, as gentle as a woman, as simple as a child. It was there he received the Parthian arrow of vanquished slavery, and fell, the noble victim of the noblest of causes."

Mr. Laugel concludes his sketch with these words:

"As always happens, the people, astounded by their sorrow, only now feel all they have lost. Condemned by the force of events to become a great man, Mr. Lincoln has gained a glory which he never coveted. With what larger joy he would have refused it if, at such a price, he could have spared his country the cruel trials from amid which his name was slowly to rise. His glory will survive many a gaudy and hollow renown. It will give a new feature to that pure ideal which places greatness in simplicity; which makes power bend to the law; and which does not separate heroism from self denial. I should say enough if I said that Mr. Lincoln was a Christian statesman, taking the word in its most sublime sense. He never thought of himself; and so his own country and the whole world will keep him in their memory forever."

CAPT. FISK'S OVERLAND EXPEDITION

The Yellow Stone Gold Region of Montana Territory—Mining—Agriculture and Commerce.

From the Washington Chronicle.

We have had the pleasure of an interview with Captain James L. Fisk, United States army, whose explorations and expeditionary travels through the great prairies and mountains of the Northwest have made his name distinguished among men. He was of the very first to plant a settlement and develop those rich and extensive gold mines on the eastern base of the Rocky Mountains in what is now Montana Territory, and which have yielded their millions of the precious metals to the relief of the national finances. This magnificent Territory received its first little colony of settlers in 1862, and has now a population of near seventy five thousand, while less than one-eighth of the area embraced in its boundaries is as yet occupied by the whites. * * *

It has been the wise and judicious custom of Congress, from year to year, to appropriate liberal sums of money to be appropriated to the several routes used by emigrants westward for their guidance and protection; but for this year, while there is much greater need than perhaps ever before, in consequence of the many thousands of the army and citizen employees of the Government being thrown out of employment, and the necessity of many of them seeking homes and a means of livelihood in the West, there is no Government aid provided. Under this condition of things, Captain Fisk, yielding to the demand of the times, and willing, as he says, to share another year in the pilgrimage and hardships of the emigrant, will try, if necessary, without the material aid of the Government, to perform the required service of organizing a colony, and conducting them in safety to fields for their enterprise and their labor, where sure reward awaits every man who may go determined, by his own effort, to better his condition.

With this in view, and at the urgent request of men in all parts of the country, Capt. Fisk has accepted the leadership and direction of the emigration from the Northwest, and has begun to organize a colony of several thousand persons to march them from Minnesota by way of Forts Berthold and Union, on the Missouri river; cross the Missouri at the latter point, and ascend the Yellow Stone valley to the mouth of the Big Horn, or to the practical head of navigation of the Yellow Stone, there lay off and establish a city, and by an organized joint stock company, in which all members of the colony should be share holders, proceed to the development of the mineral country contiguous thereto.

This region of the Upper Yellow Stone and its many tributaries is occupied and has been held, since the white man knew anything about it, with successful tenacity by the proud and wealthy Crow Indians, who are probably the finest tribe of natives on the continent, as their invaluable hunting grounds, and from Lewis and Clarke down to the most modern explorer who has ever visited that region, it is pronounced to be the paradise of all the Western country.

As we understand it, Captain Fisk will fit out a complete supply and transportation train, with camp accommodations, &c., complete, and make his expedition and the entire enterprise self-supporting, by assessing each person $100, more or less, according to the extent of the privileges desired; this sum to be paid upon enrollment of each person, a certificate receipt given therefor, and with this fund as the capital everything necessary for the supply and comfort and use of the colony while on the march will be provided. Subscriptions to the stock company, which must also be paid in upon the issue of the certificate, will be invested in a portable steam saw-mill, machinery, implements for mining, and such other ways as will contribute to the active operation and success of said company. Agricultural implements and seeds for the ground and abundant stores of provisions will also be taken out.

The Captain informs us that companies and squads are now forming in almost every State, while letters from portions of the army soon to be disbanded are numerous, asking for directions as to the organization &c., &c.

We understand that application has been made and strongly urged with the President and War Department for the retention of Capt. Fisk in the service, and that he be furnished what facilities can be granted for the fitting out of his expedition. It surely will be no more than the least of Governments do to encourage such an enterprise as this, and we can hardly afford to be so excessively economical all at once as not to recognize the claim of this officer to at least his modest commission, and a sum for contingent expenses sufficient to make that commission respectable while engaged in the laudable and arduous task of pioneering and colonizing the undeveloped territories of the West. This project will give immediate employment and relief to many of the great army of straggling, unemployed men now seeking in vain occupation for their hands; and in more than any other way will the Government be directly benefited by the development of the inexhaustible riches of those mineral regions.

Captain Fisk, will, we are informed, remain here, and may be found at the Union Hotel, Georgetown, until about the 10th of June, when he will proceed to St. Paul, Minnesota, the base of operations; and whether the Government does or does not grant the very limited aid and encouragement which is asked, the expedition will be organized, as stated, and ready to move from the rendezvous in Minnesota by the 15th of July. We can say no less than to wish this commendable and important enterprise that success which it deserves.

The Gubernatorial Chair—A Chance for Aspirants.

From the Winona Republican.

Gov. Miller, of this State publicly announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Whether this declaration is made in a Pickwickian sense, and with a view to informing the public that he is a candidate, we do not positively know, but it is best, perhaps, to take the Governor at his word and exclude him from the list of possible aspirants to the Gubernatorial chair for the next term. And it is not to be greatly wondered at that he should decline. The office of Governor of the State of Minnesota is by no means a sinecure. There is a great deal of hard labor to be done, much of it of a very thankless character, and the pay is by no means commensurate with either the work required of the incumbent, or the dignity which of right such an official as the Governor of a sovereign State should maintain. In point of fact, any man who is not moderately wealthy makes a sacrifice in accepting the office of Governor of Minnesota—Only a man of means can be our chief magistrate with credit to himself. Therefore, we say, it is not to be wondered at that Gov. Miller is satisfied with one term. He can doubtless do better, pecuniarily, in some other walk of life. There is, to be sure, some political influence and importance to be acquired as Governor. Some men have even looked to that position as a stepping stone to the United States Senate. But these are purely ambitious men, who make everything, public and private, subservient to their own personal welfare. Not so Gov. Miller. He has seen the vanity of such ambitious scheming, and prefers to adopt that course which will best enable him to perform the duties of the upright citizen—the unselfish patriot. Having served with bravery in the field, and with wisdom in the councils of the State, he can now, as did Cincinnatus of old, return to the quieter walks of life with a full appreciation of all those pure enjoyments which rural seclusion affords. All good men will unite in desiring him the largest measure of success and happiness in the sphere of labor of which he has marked out for himself, after his official career shall have terminated.

This decision of Governor Miller to vacate the gubernatorial chair at the expiration of his present term, announced thus publicly, will doubtless set the politicians to work, looking after the "succession." Among the persons who have already been named in this connection, we have heard of Ex Governor Smith, Colonel Marshall, John McKusick, of Stillwater, Secretary of State, Blakely, Lieutenant Governor Sherwood, and Senator Daniels, of Olmstead county. Gov. Swift in addition to his acknowledged capacity, has had experience in the office, and would unquestionably make a good Executive. We do not believe, however, that he would accept the nomination. He holds, at present, a more lucrative, although, perhaps, not a more honorable, situation, and it is by no means probable that he would resign substantial for merely shadowy benefits. He can scarcely be counted, therefore, among the candidates for the position of Mr. Miller's successor. Mr. McKusick is a strong man and an able one, and would be a suitable candidate for the office. But the strongest man, in our estimation, is Colonel William R. Marshall, the brave and hard-working commander of the Seventh regiment. To begin with, he possesses the confidence and esteem of the soldiers, who will hereafter be a power in the political field as they have hitherto been in the field of battle. He is, besides, a man of fine abilities, and perhaps better informed with respect to the history of our State, as well as its present condition and requirements, than any other who has been thus far named in connection with the office. He would make a most popular candidate as well as an efficient executive. We are not aware that Col. Marshall has given permission to use his name in this manner—in fact, we think he has not. But that makes no practical difference. Having heard it suggested by one of his friends in the army, we have taken the liberty to comment as we have done, and assume all the responsibility that may follow.

There is no need, however, for people to commit themselves in behalf of any candidate so far in advance. The time for making the choice is yet distant, and other gentlemen besides those alluded to above may appear on the list—all of whom will be entitled to such consideration as their respective merits may demand.

An Interview with Forrest.

His Version of the Fort Pillow Massacre.

A correspondent of the New Orleans True Delta describes a recent interview with the rebel General Forrest, at Meridian, Mississippi. Forrest, he says, is a man of fine appearance, about six feet in height; dark, piercing, hazel eyes; carefully trimmed moustache and chin whiskers dark as night; finely cut features and iron gray hair. His form is lithe, plainly indicating great physical power and activity. The writer asked, after some preliminary questions:

"Now that you have time, General, do you think you will ever put upon paper the true account of the Fort Pillow affair?" "Well," said he, "the Yankees ought to know; they sent down their best men to investigate the affair."

"But are we to believe their report, General?"

"Yes, if we are to believe anything a nigger says. When I went into the war, I meant to fight. Fighting means killing. I have lost twenty-nine horses in the war, and have killed a man each time. The other day I was a horse ahead, but at Selma they surrounded me and I killed two—jumped my horse over a one horse wagon, and got away." I began to think I had some idea of the man at last. He continued: "My Provost Marshal's book will show that I have taken 31,000 prisoners during the war. At Fort Pillow I sent in a flag of truce, and demanded an unconditional surrender, or I would not answer for my men. This they refused. I sent them another note, giving them one hour to determine. This they refused. I could see on the river boats loaded with troops. They sent back asking for an hour more. I gave them twenty minutes. I sat on my horse during the whole time.

The fort was filled with niggers and deserters from our army; men who lived side by side with my men. I waited five minutes after the time, and then blew my bugle for the charge. In twenty minutes my men were over the works, and the firing had ceased. The citizens and Yankees had broken in the heads of whisky and lager beer barrels, and were all drunk. They kept up firing all the time, as they went down the hill. Hundreds of them rushed to the river and tried to swim to the gunboats, and my men shot them down. The Mississippi river was red with their blood for three hundred yards. During all this, their flag was still flying, and I rushed near the works and cut the halyards and let it down, and stopped the fight. Many of the Yankees were in tents in front, and they were in their way, as they concealed my men, and some of them set them on fire. If any were burnt to death, it was in these tents.

They have a living witness in Captain Young, their Quartermaster, who is still alive, and I will leave it to any prisoner I have ever taken, if I have not treated them well.

THE ASSASSINATION.

Affidavit of Mr. J. S. Clarke, the Comedian.

Among the many witnesses confined in the Carroll military prison, in Washington, was Mr. J. S. Clarke, the celebrated comedian. It is but justice to that gentleman to state that he was unconditionally released last Friday, by the direction of Secretary Stanton, without even any examination or taint upon his loyalty and devotion to his country. At his own request, before leaving, he was permitted by the Secretary of War to make the following affidavit, which was witnessed by Judge Turner:

AFFIDAVIT OF JOHN S. CLARKE.

MAY 5, 1865.—I did not see John Wilkes Booth after February, 1865. I have no recollection of receiving but one letter from him in four years, which was purely on theatrical matters. I had no conversation with him on political subjects for at least two years. I am, and have always been, loyal to the Government of the United States. I have repeatedly volunteered my professional services and acted gratuitously in aid of the United States Sanitary Commission, and have made many private contributions beneficial to the federal cause. I do believe, and have always thought, the Booth family (save John Wilkes) to be in their sentiments and feelings entirely loyal to the United States government. John Wilkes Booth, during the past few years, occasionally left at my house, in Philadelphia, large envelopes, in care of his sister (my wife); these he invariably said contained "stocks &c.," and were left for safe keeping, as he was obliged to travel in the far West, to meet his professional engagements. These envelopes have remained sometimes for months, and he has taken them away. I think during the latter part of November, 1864, while I was from home, acting in New York, he left an envelope in this way at my house, sealed, and directed to himself, as they all were. During January he again visited my house, and asked for it, returning it, or a similar one, which was, as usual, placed in my safe. On the Saturday afternoon after the assassination of the President, (April 15) Mrs Booth, the mother, came to my house from New York. On Sunday we thought of the envelope. The whole family was of course much depressed and excited. We determined to open it. We found therein an address to the people of the North and a letter for his mother, three thousand dollars in five-twenty bonds, one thousand dollars in Philadelphia city sixes, and for his brother Junius an assignment of some oil lands in Pennsylvania, and nothing more. Thinking the authorities would inquire at the residence of his family for articles belonging to him, I kept the papers during Monday. On Tuesday I took them to United States Marshal Millward, suggesting that, as an act of justice to the distressed family, I should like him to cause to be published the letter for his mother, as in that he exonerated his relative from any sympathy with his secession propensities. I was surprised the next morning to find the address published instead of the letter for his mother. I had no idea the address would appear in the newspapers, the publication of which being a discretionary act of the Government officer into whose hands, as a duty, I had delivered it. Upon the arrival of Junius B. Booth at my residence, April 19th, on his way to his home in New York, he suggested that I should make known his whereabouts to the authorities, and he would do likewise in New York, as he might be required to testify to any knowledge they might suppose him to possess regarding J. Wilkes Booth, whereupon I introduced him to the United States Marshal on the 20th of April. On the 25th of April Mr. Booth was arrested.

J. S. CLARKE.

Sworn to, and subscribed before Judge Turner, Military Magistrate, Washington, May 5, 1865.

CONGRATULATORY ORDER.

The Lieutenant General to the United States Armies.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Gen. Grant has issued the following congratulatory address to the armies:

GENERAL ORDERS NO. 108.

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 2.—Soldiers of the armies of the United States, by your patriotic devotion to your country in the hour of danger and alarm, your magnificent fighting, bravery and endurance, you have attained the supremacy of the Union and constitution, overthrown armed opposition to the enforcement of laws and of the proclamations forever abolishing slavery, the cause and pretext of the rebellion, and opened the way for the rightful authorities to restore order and inaugurate peace on a permanent and enduring basis on every foot of American soil. Your marches, sieges and battles, in distance, duration, resolution and brilliancy of results, dim the lustre of the world's past military achievements and will be the patriot's precedent in the defense of liberty and right in all time to come.

In obedience to your country's call you left your homes and firesides, and volunteered in its defense. Victory has crowned your valor and secured the purposes of your patriotic hearts, and with the gratitude of your countrymen and the highest honors a great and free nation can accord, you will soon be permitted to return to your homes and families conscious of having discharged the highest duty of the American citizen.

To achieve these glorious triumphs and secure to yourselves, your fellow countrymen, and posterity the blessing of free institutions, tens of thousands of your gallant comrades have fallen and sealed the priceless legacy with their lives.—Their graves a grateful nation bedews with tears, honors their memories and will ever cherish and support their stricken families.

[Signed] U. S. GRANT, Lt. Gen.

—General Grant has nearly completed his last annual report as General-in-Chief, which his duties in the field has prevented him from finishing in time for transmission to Congress at its last session. The report will be published immediately at its completion.

—Major General Thomas will not, as has previously been announced, take command of the Department of Virginia, but after visiting New York, will return to the West. Owing to his long service in the Southwest, and his thorough knowledge of the people and their needs and wishes, President Johnson has determined to assign to him the work of reorganization in that section. His headquarters will remain at Nashville.

Special Notices.

For the Army, for the Navy, and for Every One.

The world is so inundated now with medicines of every description which are warranted cures for every known and unknown species of disease, that the sufferer finds it almost impossible to distinguish between good and bad. Some of these wonderful fluids profess to cure every complaint known to the Materia Medica. In speaking of Hostetter's Bitters, we refer to a preparation which limits itself to one department of the body—the stomach—the irregularities and disorders of which it not only claims to cure, but does. Its reputation has become world-wide, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic, in both hemispheres, and in every latitude and zone, it is known and employed as a remedial agent.

Persons who have been repeatedly deceived, perhaps, cannot be convinced that Hostetter's Bitters will effect cure, rapid, and permanent cures. But this assertion is confirmed by testimonial letters from the most distinguished men in the country. All who have once used these Bitters keep them now by their side as a safeguard, believing that "an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

The digestive organs which have been violated and prostrated by excessive or irregular indulgence of appetite, will be restored to their normal condition by the use of this wonderful medicine.—Boston Traveller. june6-d&w-1w

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty which will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heart-burn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. Sold by all respectable Dealers in Medicines. june6-d&w 1m

"Spring it is cheery,
Winter is dreary,
Green leaves hang, but the brown must fly;
When he is shaken,
Lone and forsaken,
What can an old man do but die?"

Why, take PLANTATION BITTERS to be sure, and with them a new lease of life. The old are made young again, the middle aged rejoice, and the young become doubly brilliant by using this splendid Tonic. Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Liver Complaint, Headache, Pains in the side, "Crick in the Back," and all symptoms of Stomachic Derangement yield at once to the health-giving influence of PLANTATION BITTERS. june ro,th sat-1w

Resistance at An End.

Great news of brilliant achievements is arriving from every quarter. Heads that must turn coaly-rebel against the laws of beauty, whether they be white iron gray, sandy, or glaring red, are everywhere

A great many side hits are being made at the Plantation Bitters, by a score or two of disinterested friends who have endeavored to imitate or counterfeit them. It's all of no use. The people won't be long imposed upon. The Plantation Bitters are increasing in use and popularity every day, and "that's what's the matter." They are in same sized bottle, and made just as they were at first, and will continue to be, as we shall stop making them.

The Plantation Bitters purify, strengthen and invigorate.

They create a healthy appetite.

They are an antidote to change of water and diet.

They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.

They strengthen the system and the mind.

They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.

They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.

They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.

They cure Diarrhea, Cholera and Cholera Morbus.

They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.

They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. The Recipe and full Circular are around each bottle. Clergymen, Merchants, and persons whose sedentary habits induce weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, liver complaint, constipation, &c., will find an immediate and permanent relief in these Bitters. But above all, they are recommended to weak and delicate females and mothers.

They are sold by all respectable merchants. See that each bottle has our private United States Stamp over the cork, and steel plate side label.

Beware of refilled bottles. See that the stamp has not been tampered with. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the Gallon is a swindler and imposter, and should be immediately reported to us.

U.S. 7-30 LOAN

THIRD SERIES.

$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, the undersigned, the General Subscription Agent for the sale of United States Securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent. interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15, 1865, and are payable three years from that date in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

GOLD-BEARING BONDS.

These Bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum to their value, according to the rate levied upon other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The Interest at 7.30 per cent. amounts to

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| One cent per day on a $50 note. | | | | | |
| Two cents | " | " | " | $100 | " |
| Ten | " | " | " | $500 | " |
| 20 | " | " | " | $1,000 | " |
| $1 | " | " | " | $5,000 | " |

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The Notes of this Third Series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent., instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven-thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made to the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent. in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET

Now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the

Great Popular Loan of the People.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the Loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

THE SOUTHERN PEOPLE.

How They Feel and What They Think about Matters in General.

A correspondent of the New York Herald writes as follows from Greensboro, N. C.

THE GENERAL FEELING OF THE PEOPLE.

It strikes me as remarkable that, so far as I have traveled, and among all the people with whom I have conversed, I have not yet found a single individual who either denied the termination of the war or wished it otherwise. I have heard citizens talk together, and rebel officers and soldiers conversing with the people, and uniformly the common expression is that the Union is re-established, and that it behooves everybody to go to work as good citizens to re-establish the industrial pursuits and prosperity of the country.

"QUEER IDEAS."

I conversed six hours with the Brigadier General Harris, of Mississippi, who expressed to me somewhat queer ideas, but, nevertheless, was not disloyal in anything he said. He agreed with General Lee that the war settles the question of State rights, just as an election settles the question of who shall hold office. The defeated party are not persuaded that their policy is wrong, but they yield to the opinions of the majority. So in this case the South must yield its State rights, not because they any the less believe in State rights, but simply because that doctrine cannot be established. And yet he has not taken the oath of allegiance. And here is one of his queer notions. His State sent him to the army. He is now returning to that State to follow her. When she is restored to the Union he shall consider himself restored, without an oath, and with his allegiance due to the general government rather than to the State, because the State accepts that view of the case. Still he has no objection to taking the oath, and will do so in his own State whenever it is required of him. His views seem to be founded on honest and high toned convictions. He contends that everybody who remains in the country is bound to give his allegiance to the government, with or without the oath, or accept the brand of traitor, and that the universal "swearing in" process only tends to make the oath of allegiance so common as to be a mere matter of form, with no binding effect.

THE VIEWS OF THE REBEL OFFICERS.

In the course of the conversation he related to me something of the feeling pervading the mass of the rebel officers. For instance, said he, the other evening a number were conversing on this subject when the proposition was started: suppose France should declare war against the United States and send over a powerful army would it not be the policy of the Southern people to join her and so establish their independence? The proposition was unanimously negatived, on the grounds that such a procedure would be dishonorable; and, moreover, France having refused to help them when in trouble, they would not now fight her battles for her.

WHAT THE PEOPLE THINK OF JEFF. DAVIS AND HIS ARREST.

I find wherever I go and with whomsoever I talk a universal doubt of the arrest of Jeff. Davis. Nobody in the regions through which I have passed believes it. They seem, however, to doubt it mainly because they do not want to believe it. They do not like Jeff. Davis, yet, having lived under his rule for four years, they retain something akin to awe of him as their quondam chief magistrate and commander-in-chief, and not for his sake, but for the sake of the office they wish it otherwise and so believe it. They cannot conceive of a President fleeing from justice and chased down like a petty thief. And with all their dislike of the man politically, they still hang on to the idea of his morality and high Christian principle, which would not permit him to be a party to the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, which everybody abhors. They also scout the idea of a chivalrous Southron seeking to avoid capture by disguising himself in female attire. If that fact shall be substantiated, then goodby to the last respect of the Southern people for Jeff. Davis.

CURIOSITY IN REGARD TO THE ARREST OF GOV. VANCE.

Much curiosity is manifested in this part of North Carolina in regard to the arrest of Gov Vance. It is a matter that is not understood at all. What is the government going to do with him, they ask. The truth is, these people do not yet comprehend that they have been in rebellion against the legitimate government. The rebel leaders have thoroughly educated them to the conviction that the Southern Confederacy became an established government the moment it was set up, with equal rights and privileges with the United States or France, and that in the war they have been the injured party. Or, if they did wrong in separating from the Union, the loss of blood and treasure the war has entailed upon them, with the loss of their negroes, is a sufficient punishment. They don't stop to think that they have caused the North equal sacrifices to subdue them. And now, because they have suffered equally with the the North—a suffering that they brought upon themselves—are they to be punished no more? Then loyalty receives the same punishment as does treason.

President Johnson on Pardons.

A circumstance transpired among the first acts of Mr. Johnson, on assuming the duties of President which shows what the public may expect of him in the way of pardons. About seven or eight years ago a person was tried in Boston on the charge of slavedealing. He was convicted and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He had served out six or seven years of that penalty when there was a strong pressure upon Mr. Lincoln to pardon him. Several prominent politicians of Boston strenuously urged the use of the pardoning power. They presented several extenuating facts, and finally Mr Lincoln consented to sign it. He placed his signature to the document on the day on which he was assassinated, and sent it to the Attorney General's office to be attested and executed. It arrived there too late to be attended to on that day, and before the office was again opened Mr. Lincoln breathed his last. The several Cabinet ministers, as a matter of form, presented the unfinished business in their departments to President Johnson, and among this class was this pardon, signed, but not executed. It attracted President Johnson's attention, and he immediately said, "I must examine into this," retaining it for that purpose. Upon making inquiries he had it cancelled, saying that no person ever engaged in that business would get a pardon from him. This may be considered as conclusive evidence that there will be some difference between the use of the pardoning power in the hands of President Johnson than in the hands of President Lincoln.

THE CITY.

Larceny.—Ellen Glenn, an incorrigible thief, has been arraigned for stealing from the money draw of Thorwarth's shoe store, on Third street. She entered the store during the temporary absence of the proprietor, and before he returned, managed to abstract twelve dollars from the till.

Upon his return she selected a pair of shoes and had them laid aside until the next day, in order to enable her to ob the money. Contrary to the ordinary tactics of thieves, she returned as she agreed, was charged with the theft, confessed, returned the money, and was taken to the Police Court and fined ten dollars, which she also paid.

Ellen is a girl sixteen or seventeen years of age, who makes a business of stealing, though she is by no means an expert. Not long since she went through lower town ostensibly begging for "a poor woman above the bell;" but in reality she was only conducting her regular business, and in addition to the charity she received, pilfered wherever it was possible. She was arrested on two charges, the house of her parents searched, and the stolen property recovered, whereupon the prosecution was withdrawn, owing to a hope that she might reform. This hope is undoubtedly a vain one, for the penitentiary would simply suspend her operations, and she would resume her vocation upon being released.

Our citizens should look out for this thief, and cut short her career. She is well known to the police, and it will be pretty safe to arrest her whenever she enters a house or store.

Excursionists.—The Itasca landed at the levee yesterday noon with a load of excursionists, consisting of fifteen or twenty couple from Dubuque and nearly fifty couple from Hastings. They were accompanied by the Second Cavalry band.

During the afternoon a portion of the party indulged in a pleasant drive to Minneapolis and Minnehaha, while a number of others visited the former place by cars. We heard many compliments from the passengers for Capt. Webb and Clerk Frank Lewis, and their uniform attentiveness and courtesy were universally commended.

Personal.—We were pleased to greet among the excursionists from Dubuque, yesterday, Geo. H. Ballou, Esq., one of the editors of the Dubuque Times. The Times is an enterprising journal, true to the Union, and by all odds the paper of Dubuque.

We also noticed among the Hastings party, Irving Todd of the Conserver.

Telegraph poles were being set along Levee street yesterday, for the new line from St. Paul to Prescott by way of Stillwater and Hudson. We understand it is the intention to abandon the line on the other side of the river from this city to Hastings, and make the new route the main line.

First Locomotive.—The first locomotive for the Valley road, arrived from La Crosse early yesterday morning. It is appropriately named "Mankato." The Mollie Mohler took it up the Minnesota, as far as Credit river, last evening.

Inspection.—Major General Curtis, accompanied by Col. McLaren, will start this morning on a tour of inspection of the frontier posts along the southwestern line.

PAUL RIEGER, Druggist, Third street, Upper Town, keeps constantly on hand, J. G. Oswald's pure native wines for medicinal purposes, consisting of Blackberry, Cranberry, Currant, Raspberry, Rhubarb, native and Clinton Grape, which he will sell at wholesale or retail. COME AT LAST.—For the past ten years we have heard constant complaints both from citizens as well as strangers, that our city would not support a fashionable Ice Cream Saloon. Mr. Schiller, on Third street above the Presbyterian church, has at a great expense, opened such an establishment. Mr. S. guarantees that his Creams, Water Ices, Fruits, French Pastries and Confections shall equal any kept in the most fashionable saloons of the Eastern cities, and all he asks of the ladies and gentlemen of the city is their patronage which he so well deserves. 1w

HALL & MCKINNEY have just received one hundred and seventy-five lbs. of the finest trout of the season. Families can be supplied for a few days. Also teal duck, frog's legs, oysters, and everything else. Ice cream made from pure, rich cream, constantly on hand. They have made arrangements with parties in the country to keep them supplied with the pure cream.

MRS. HUMPHREY, Physician at Hygeian Home, St. Anthony, will address the ladies of St. Paul on the subject of health at Ingersoll's Hall, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 4 o'clock P. M. Ladies are invited to attend; they will be interested and instructed. Entrance free. 6t

RIVER NEWS.

The water continues to fall at the rate of an inch and a half every twenty-four hours. There is now scant four feet on the bars between here and the Lake.

The Minnesota has reached such a stage that there is scarcely water enough to report. The Enterprize has given it up and is laid up at the levee. The Albany is laid up above the rapids waiting for a rise. The Ariel is trying to get over and come down. The Stella is still trying to run to St. Peter, but she met with an accident on her last trip and is being repaired. Of the Cutter, we cannot speak, but we are pretty certain she is afloat as there is not water enough to sink her.

ARRIVALS.—The Itasca was the gay boat yesterday, having a large excursion party on board from Dubuque and Hastings. She also brought a fair load of freight. The attractive feature of the Northern Belle's trip was a locomotive for the Valley Road which she brought up. The Canada came in from St. Louis about 7 P. M. This is her first trip here this season. The Hawkeye and Sucker State being too heavy have been withdrawn, and the Canada and Fanning substituted. The Canada is commanded by Captain Robert E. Hill. First Clerk, James Ewing; Second Clerk, Wm. Ewing. Mr. Ewing has our thanks for favors.

PERSONAL.—Geo. A. Blanchard, Esq.,

Secretary and Treasurer of the Northwestern Line, came up on the Itasca yesterday.

Reminiscences of the Elder Booth.

From the Spirit of the West.

I knew Brutus Booth, Sen., in Baltimore, where his eccentricities were better known, perhaps, than in any other city. His freaks of insanity, as they were called, were so familiar to the inhabitants of that city that his most absurd performances excited but little remark. A few reminiscences of his mysterious conduct during that period may be read with interest.

On a miserable December morning Booth's physician was sitting in his office on Gay street, when he heard some one come upon the stoop, and thought, from the peculiar slipshod sound of the visitor's footsteps, that he was a negro slave. There was a deep snow on the ground, and a drizzling rain was now falling, which caused the streets to be in a deplorable condition. The door was opened without knocking, and, instead of a slave, the great actor entered, with nothing upon his feet but a pair of thin stockings. Speaking in an earnest voice, and with that curious nasal twang for which he was remarkable, he asked the doctor if he could go and see his father, who was very ill. He was answered in the affirmative, when the two at once started to a house several squares distant, Booth leading the way. The doctor was conducted to a room in the fourth story, in which there was no fire, and where upon an humble couch, reposed the miserable man's sire, sleeping the sleep of death. He had been dead so long that the blood in his body was congealed, and the corpse was cold as ice. The doctor examined the body a moment and said:

"Mr. Booth, your father is dead."

"Can't you do anything for him?" inquired the actor.

"I cannot resurrect him."

Booth then approached the lifeless form of his father, and seizing him by the lower jaw, sprung his mouth open, and endeavored to breathe into his lungs new vitality. To his apparent surprise he did not succeed, and, turning slightly away, he observed:

"You are right, he is dead."

On one occasion Booth entered a bakery, clothed in rags, and carrying in his hand a small bundle, around which was a coarse bandanna handkerchief. Accosting the baker, he asked:

"Will you trust me for a loaf of bread?"

The man seeming to know his customer, replied that he would. Booth received the loaf, and requested the baker to keep his bundle in pawn until the money was paid. As soon as the actor was gone the vender of bread untied the handkerchief, and found that it contained a quid of tobacco, an oyster shell and an old shoe, which he threw into the back yard. Next day Mr. Booth appeared again, attired in a new suit of handsome black, and looking the picture of gentility.

"I believe I owe you five cents," he said, and thereupon paid it. He continued, "I will now trouble you for the bundle I left with you."

"I can give you the handkerchief," was the reply; "but I threw the contents away."

"Sir," exclaimed Booth "you committed an egregious error."

"Did I? I can d—d soon remedy it;" and the baker proceeded to the back yard, where he gathered the scattered treasures together, and putting them in the handkerchief, returned them to their owner, who, bowing his acknowledgements, turned and walked away.

Booth was once discovered by a friend sitting in a grove, near Baltimore, in a state of complete nudity, and banqueting off an ordure. The gentleman approached him, and commenced reasoning with him upon his abominable proceeding, when he seized a stick of wood, knocked his adviser down, and then ran to a house about a mile distant, where he frightened a number of women and children almost out of their wits. He was finally captured and returned to the city.

Booth once sent to a gentleman who now resides in this city to come to his house. On arriving there he found Booth lying upon a bed, with a table near by, upon which were two potatoes and as many cigars, besides a large number of peels.

"Have a potato?" inquired Booth.

"Not any."

"Smoke, then."

Our friend complied.

In a few moments Booth produced a couple of letters, enveloped and sealed, and said he wanted one of them carried to Andrew Jackson, President of the United States, and the other to the governor of Rhode Island. They were very important, and must be carried by some one who would go all the way on foot. He wanted his friend to look up a negro in the city, who was a whitewasher, and who, being exceedingly trustworthy, would perform the office faithfully. Of course the affair was forgotten as soon as the visitor left, and the letters never sent.

Booth often said, in his collected moments, that all of his insanity was due to brandy. Of this there can be no doubt; there was not a particle of "moral" insanity about him.

Wendell Phillips on Negro Suffrage.

At the annual meeting of the New England Anti-Slavery Convention, on Wednesday:

Wendell Philips took the stand, and said that the real topic for discussion was immediate suffrage for the negro. Mr. Maynard, of Tennessee, was right. There was no time to agitate this question. Discussion before the people would not secure colored suffrage for twenty-five years. The right must be conceded at once to secure the nation from serious trouble and perhaps disaster. The condition of every black man was to day no better than in 1833, and he did not see how any man could say slavery was abolished and give up his efforts in the anti slavery cause. It would be a year before even the technical abolition of slavery would take place. The condition of the negro at the South was in a state of remarkable uncertainty. No man could say whether he could own property, protect his wife, testify in a court, or exercise any other natural right. The white men of each state claimed the privilege to regulate all this, and the Tennessee Legislature had just enacted a law concerning free colored people. Do they enact laws regarding free white people? All that concerns the colored people is to be regulated by the whites, and what will the whites do when their states are reconstructed without the negro franchise? They would unite with the old Democratic party in the last Congress of Johnson's presidency, and show the friends of liberty who it is that has really been whipped in this last hour of the war. The black race would be kept practically in the condition of serfs, bound to the soil. The admission of a single state without negro suffrage, would settle the whole question and slavery would exist in reality but not in name.

After this was settled the next question forced into Congress would be the acceptance of the Southern debt. And if this was done successfully, he would, argue for repudiation of the whole in the last hour of his life. Deprive the South of negro suffrage and every drop of blood has been spilled, and every dollar of treasure expended in vain. Already had threats been made that reconstruction would be put through next winter on an anti negro basis in spite of all opposition. It would be the great question of the Congressional session. This spring Mr. Sumner said to Mr. Lincoln, "Louisiana must be reconstructed on the basis of the Declaration of Independence." Mr. Lincoln hesitated, and did not reply, when Mr. Sumner said, "Sir, if you reconstruct it on any other basis, count me as an opponent." That was the position for every friend of a permanent Union and of permanent freedom to take, and stand by it firmly. Far better that Grant had surrendered to Lee than that the President should surrender to North Carolina or Louisiana, and make useless all the sufferings and losses and sacrifices of this fearful struggle.

Among those present in the hall were Whiting Griswold, George Thompson, and Amasa Walker.

Union Meeting at Macon.

CHATTANOOGA, June 4.—Macon dates of the 2d contain a report that a large and enthusiastic meeting was held at Columbus, Georgia, on the 26th ult., for the purpose of taking into consideration their condition. A committee was appointed, who reported the following resolutions:

Resolved, In our opinion the war has terminated, and it is the duty of all to submit to the authority of the United States.

Resolved, That we honestly desire that law and order be speedily restored; that persons and property be fully secured, and we expect every person to resort forthwith to their usual avocations.

Resolved, That we regard the assassination of President Lincoln with abhorrence, and sincerely regret his fate.

Resolved, That until order is fully restored we respectfully request the United States authorities to retain the garrison at this place.

Resolved, That a committee is hereby appointed to proceed to Washington, make known the peaceful intentions of this portion of Georgia towards the Federal Government, and give assurance of our co-operation in any measures taken to restore peace and prosperity.

All these were unanimously adopted.

—The Washington Star says: "A paper, in cypher, found floating in the dock at Moorehead City, North Carolina, on the 2d day of May, has been turned over to the Government officials. It has been translated, and is as follows:

"'WASHINGTON, April 15, 1865.—Dear John: I am happy to inform you that Pet has done his work well. He is safe, and Old Abe is in hell. Now, sir, all eyes are on you. You must bring Sherman. Grant is in the hands of old Grey ere this. Red Shoes showed a lack of nerve in Seward's case, but he fell back in good order. Johnson must come; Old Crook has him in charge. Mind well that brother's oath, and you will have no difficulty; all will be safe. Enjoy the fruits of your labor.

(Signed) "'O. B., No. 5.'"

—Advices from New Orleans gives details of the surrender of Kirby Smith's force, but the main facts have already been stated. The report says some of the rebel Generals had requested permission of Gen. Canby to be allowed to take twenty thousand of their troops across the Rio Grande into Mexico, to the assistance of President Juarez. The rebel Generals were very anxious to obtain permission to ship and sell cotton enough to pay the troops, but the scheme fell through.

NOTICE.
Sale of Army Mules.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22, 1865.

MANY THOUSANDS OF MULES are being disposed of at public sale, at Washington.

The sales will continue until the number of animals is reduced in proportion to the reduction of the armies, now going on rapidly.

There are in the armies of the Potomac, of the Tennessee, and of Georgia, probably FIVE THOUSAND OF THE FINEST SIX-MULE TEAMS IN THE WORLD.

Many of them were bought in the beginning of the war as young mules, accompanied the armies in all their marches and camps, and are thoroughly broken, hardened by exercise, gentle and familiar, from being so long surrounded by the soldiers.

The whole South is stripped of farming stock, and the North also has suffered from the drain of animals, taken to supply the armies.

These animals are sold at public auction, THEY WILL NOT BRING ANYTHING LIKE THEIR TRUE VALUE, and such opportunities for farmers to get working animals to stock their farms, and for drovers and dealers in stock to make good speculations, by purchasing them and disposing of them in the South, will never occur again.

THE SECRET TESTIMONY.

We copied into this paper, the other day, from the Cincinnati Commercial, a full report of the testimony taken in secret session on the first two days of the assassination trial, by far the most important and startling which has yet been adduced. This testimony, it will be recollected, convicts Thompson, Cleary, Tucker, Sanders, and Clay, and indirectly, Jeff. Davis also, of active and full complicity in the plot to assassinate the President and his Cabinet, and Gen. Grant, and formed the basis for the President's Proclamation. It was given by parties, who, while secretly friends to the Union, had worked themselves into relations of confidential intimacy with the agents of the Rebel Government in Canada. Conover, one of the witnesses, had long been employed as a secret correspondent of the New York Tribune; the whole plot for the assassination of President Lincoln and Johnson, and the heads of Departments and of our armies, was revealed to him by the virtuous Thompson, who invited his assistance, and also by Cleary, and he had warned the Government of the intended blow.

The conspiracy was, as Secretary Stanton affirmed, "Concocted in Canada and approved at Richmond." On the 6th or 7th of April, John Surratt came into Jacob Thompson's room where Conover was present, with dispatches from Jeff. Davis and Benjamin in cypher, and Thompson acquainted Conover with the contents of the dispatches which approved the assassination of Messrs. Lincoln, Johnson, Seward, Stanton, Chase and Grant. Thompson said to him: "This makes the thing all right." He further said he had commissions for this work from the rebel authorities, and afterwards that he had commissioned Booth, and that the other agents of the plot would be.

Conover's testimony unfolds other conspiracies, such as a plot of the infamous Blackburn to poison the Croton dam, which supplies New York city with water, his yellow fever plot, and the various raids from Canada. His testimony shows that the rebel agents in Canada were well supplied with money for all these enterprises, and shows that they were inspired by a hope of striking such terror into the North as to make us sick of the war.

Conover's testimony was fully corroborated by that of Jas. B. Merritt a physician and of Richard Montgomery, a Government detective, who had wormed himself into the secrets of the conspirators. The testimony of all these show that Payne, Booth, Surratt, and others of their immediate instruments were often in Canada, conferring with Thompson, Sanders, &c. After Conover had given his testimony he went to Canada again, and the New York Tribune says he has not since been heard of, and it is feared he has been foully dealt with. The publication of this secret testimony it seems was unauthorized by the Court. A special to the Times says:

The military commission held a secret session yesterday, and one of the reasons assigned for the session was the publication on Friday last in the Cincinnati Commercial, and copied from them by other papers, of a synopsis of the evidence taken in secret session on the first two days of the trial, and known as the "suppressed testimony." Some ten days ago it was determined that this testimony should be published, if possible, on Friday the 2d inst., inasmuch as there would be no session of the commission on Fast Day, the 1st inst., and therefore no report of current proceedings would be in the way of the publication of the entire suppressed testimony in a single issue of the leading daily newspapers of the principal cities. For good reasons, on Tuesday last, this order as to the publication was postponed until further developments should take place in the trial.

This morning to the surprise of Judge Holt and all others having control of the case, the newspapers contained an imperfect synopsis of the suppressed evidence. Upon inquiry, it turned out that Ben Pittman had furnished the copy to the Cincinnati paper. This Ben. Pittman styles himself the recorder of the military commission now trying the assassins. His occupation is confidential clerk to Colonel Burnett, the Assistant Judge Advocate, and he has charge of the sheets upon which the evidence is transcribed in long-hand, under the superintendence of Mr Sutton and his assistants, the Messrs Murphy—the regular official reporters of the trial. Without authorization of any kind, Mr. Pittman made a synopsis, said to be very imperfect, and sent it by mail to the Cincinnati Commercial. It is said that Mr. Pittman has violated the oath he was required to take upon entering on his present service.

The Judge Advocate to day, immediately on hearing what Pittman has done, ordered the publication of the suppressed testimony in full, and it was sent to the associated press for that purpose. What treatment Pittman will receive at the hands of the Government, for this breach of official confidence, is left to speculation.

SHERMAN AND STANTON

Gen. Sherman's report and his letters in reply to the strictures of the Secretary of War upon his famous convention with Gen. Johnston, are almost as severely and universally criticised as the original error which he seeks to justify. They reveal an impetuous and arrogant haste of misjudgment, and a weakness and petulance of temper which seriously detract from the public estimate of his character. He accused Secretary Stanton of purposely keeping back his report; when the fact was it had not left the hands of General Grant, whose reason for delaying it is evident upon its perusal. Once before when Gen. Sherman's precipitation came near forfeiting his reputation for military sagacity, Grant is said to have saved it by keeping back his (Sherman's) protest against the movement which resulted in the capture of Vicksburg—and tearing it up when the success of the movement demonstrated Sherman's error. And Grant seeing that the temper of Sherman's report would greatly injure his reputation with the country, undoubtedly delayed it in the hope that upon fuller consideration he would prefer to amend it.

Gen. Sherman's assaults upon Mr. Stanton are far more damaging to himself than to the Secretary of War. In abusing the Secretary of War he in fact assails the President and the whole administration. For it was their unanimous decision which Secretary Stanton communicated to the country—and by their authority that, for reasons deemed by them good and sufficient, he made it public.

That Secretary Stanton is not precisely Chesterfield or a James Buchanan in his manner of doing things, the people very well know, and the Copperheads and treasury thieves know it to their cost. He is a very emphatic and very positive person, no doubt; but, though he may often offend by his brusqueness, the recollection of these immaterial accidents of manner will soon pass away, while the rough vigor of his character will stand forever in the foreground of the history of Mr. Lincoln's eventful administration, as the stoutest bulwark of the Government against its open and secret assailants; and high as the place which Gen. Sherman has won in his sphere, it may be doubted whether Secretary Stanton will occupy a lower niche than he in the great gallery of the patriots and heroes and statesmen of the second American Revolution.

We were shown yesterday, a private letter from a member of the Sixth Regiment, dated Montgomery, Ala., May 16th. It represents their duty as light, saying that they drill a little and do a little guard duty. The health of the regiment is not quite as good as when on the march. They had received but one mail for five or six weeks. A meeting with the Paymaster was soon expected.

Payment of Discharged Troops

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, St. Paul, May 29, 1865.

Pay Master General U. S. A., Washington, D. C.

SIR:—I learn that some of the Minnesota organizations are under the impression that I do not wish the officers and men to be paid until they arrive in the State. On the contrary, I earnestly hope that all such organizations will be promptly paid where they are. I know that the families of many of our brave men are suffering for want of their back pay, and unless they receive the amount promptly that suffering must be greatly augmented.

The only expression of mine that could have given color to such an impression, was a reply to a query of the A. A. General, U. S. Army, in which I said that Fort Snelling would be the best point in the State at which to muster out and make final payment to the regiments about to be discharged.

Very Respectfully, &c.

STEPHEN MILLER.

The above letter was returned with the following endorsement:

"Respectfully returned to his Excellency, the Governor of Minnesota.

The orders of the War Department require that all Infantry Regiments shall be paid on discharge in their respective States. Yours at Fort Snelling.

Arrangements have already been made to supply Major Phlaney with the necessary funds to make payment there without delay.

B. W. BRICE, Pay Master Gen.

Minnesota State Sabbath School Association.

The Seventh Annual Session of this Association will be held in the Congregational Church of Lake City, commencing on Tuesday, the 18th day of July, 1865, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon.

This time has been fixed upon by the Central Committee, after consulting with brethren active in the cause, with the hope of thereby securing a full representation from all portions of the State.

The growing importance of Sabbath School instruction demands a co-operative work by all evangelical denominations of Christians; and it is exceedingly desirable that our coming session there be full reports from our whole field, and free discussion upon practical points.

It would be well for those designing to attend, to prepare, from their own experience, brief synopses of difficulties met, and of successful plans adopted to overcome them.

A collection to defray expenses is requested from Sabbath Schools of the State, to be forwarded by delegates to the Convention.

Arrangements have been made with regard to fare as follows.

By steamboat (either La Crosse or Reulsith line) full fare to the Convention will entitle delegates to a free return on presentation of certificate of attendance signed by the President of the Association. It will not be necessary to go and return by the same line.

Same arrangements by Minnesota river boats.

By Burbank & Co.'s Stage Line, two-thirds fare—tickets for going and returning to be purchased in advance.

Friends of Sabbath Schools in Minnesota! Remember your State Association, and let our next session be an era in our work.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 25, 1865.

Papers throughout the State will please give the above a place, and pastors of churches will please call particular attention to it.

—A boy named John Hursington, only twelve years of age, has been arrested in Detroit for attempting to fire the Biddle house. The young villain set fire to the bed clothing in one of the rooms, and the hotel had a narrow escape from destruction. At his trial he said he "did it for fun."

—Gen. Sherman drew his pay at Washington last week. He is said to be quite poor, having devoted his time to fighting rather than speculating.

—Lots of rope has been sent to President Johnson, to be used in hanging Jeff. Davis. Theodore Tilton has the rope with which John Brown was hung, which he has been keeping for Jeff.'s neck. That would be as appropriate as any.

—The Canadian seat of Government is to be removed to the new capital, Ottawa, about the middle of October. The buildings are to be completed and ready for use at that time.

—To George B. McClellan, at Rome or roaming—Sir. "All's quiet on the Potomac." Yours truly, UNCLE SAM.

—Mrs Bigelow, wife of our Minister to Paris, is coming home on a short visit.

—A note from Mr. Cyrus W. Field, dated London, May 17, 1865, says: "We have now over 2,300 nautical miles of cable completed, and everything is going on well, and we expect to sail the last of June or early in July."

—On the 14th of April, Orsini, Charlotte Corday, Ravaillac and Booth committed their crimes; and William III., Anne, George I., George II, George III, George IV., William IV., Washington, President Lincoln, and others, have all died on a Saturday.

—Brig. Gen. Hugh Ewing, brother-in-law of General Sherman, has just been brevetted Major General.

—Gen. Hood, the last rebel of note, and staff, surrendered to Gen. Davidson, May 31st.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Demand for the Stonewall—The Monroe Doctrine—Jeff Davis' Trial—The Alabama Question.

WASHINGTON, June 8.

A formal demand has been made upon the Spanish Government for the surrender of the rebel ram Stonewall. Of course no answer has as yet been received, as the matter goes to Madrid for discussion.

Notwithstanding the intimations of the British press it is not the intent on of our Government to abandon, or in anywise abate, the demand upon England for damages to our commerce by the anglo rebel pirates. The disbanding of a portion of the armies is no evidence of a cowardly policy. Enough will be retained to enforce any demands upon foreign Governments, and if necessary, the veterans mustered out can easily be summoned back to the field.

It is understood that preliminary measures have already been taken in reference to the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine and of notification served upon Napoleon, that since we have settled our own family affairs we will not submit to European interference with those of our sick neighbor Mexico, and every plain intimation given that Napoleon must not only not send more troops into Mexico, but must withdraw the French and Austrian troops now there and leave the people of Mexico to decide for themselves whether they have fair play.

Application has been made by Cyrus W. Field, to the Secretary of the Navy, for the detail of the United States steamship Niagara to assist in the laying of the Atlantic cable. As no official notifications of the rescinding of the order that the vessels of war of the United States, shall not be permitted to remain more than twenty-four hours in any British port have been received, the request cannot be acceded to.

The published information of the repeal of the order excluding belligerent vessels from more than twenty-four hours stay in British ports, and concedes belligerent rights to the rebels, yet admits the Shenandoah to equal privileges with our vessels. This is doubtless intended to enable the Shenandoah, the only rebel pirate now afloat, to get back to England from the East Indies where she was at the last advices.

It is not now probable that the trial of Jeff. Davis will take place until September. The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to which the indictment was found will adjourn to-morrow, and there is at present no prospect of a special term of the court during the summer.

A portion of the Alabama delegation were at the White House again to-day. Messrs. Davis, Bradley and Bibb are asserted by loyal Alabamians to be rebels of the most malignant type who are, now that the rebellion is suppressed, endeavoring to get control of the reconstruction movements. Messrs. Moore, Purson and Tibbs have been regarded as favorable to the Union, but open to suspicion for their associating with the secession element in this delegation. When they come here their intention was to recommend Col. Saybrook, a rank rebel, for Provisional Governor, but this idea was abandoned after they reached here, and they now recommend Mr. Parsons. He is opposed by the loyal men of Alabama who have recommended Wm. H. Smith, a Union man who was forced to abandon the State in 1862 on account of his Union sentiments. He has been an active promoter of the Union cause and was instrumental in raising the first Alabama cavalry regiment, which has rendered good service during the war. Should the delegation now here succeed in obtaining control of the State the fighting loyalists say it will not be safe for them to return to Alabama.

FOREIGN NEWS.

NEW YORK, June 8.

Bannings circular says business men find five-twenty bonds have been active, arising from purchases for American, and sales for the German and Dutch.

The bank of England on the 25th ordered its rate of discount from 4½ to 4 per cent. Funds have been firmer since this movement, and the demand for discount moderate. Additional failures in connection with the Bombay trade are reported.

FRANCE.—La France says that the French and English Governments feel no disquietude. Both have observed towards the United States the policy of conciliation. They have not ceased to receive from there the most moderate declarations and they have no reason to believe that any untoward events will occur to alter their friendly relations.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says that the Patrie very narrowly escaped a warning for having published alarming news about recruiting in the United States for Mexico, and says that the only change in its previous statement is that Admiral Didulat is going out to relieve Admiral Bosse, and will not be charged with any exceptional mission whatever, and have no other powers than those held by his predecessor.

The Paris Constitutionnel of the 26th says we learn that the Government of the United States has taken measures to express any attempt to affect illegal enlistments, and put a stop to any proceedings undertaken with the object of preparing emigrant expeditions against Mexico, in violation of federal laws. Instructions to this effect have been forwarded from Washington to the United States Attorney at New York, who at once took the necessary measure for the prompt execution of the same.

The weekly returns of the Bank of France show an increase of twenty millions francs in the amount of money on hand.

The Tycoon of Japan has announced that he prefers paying the indemnity stipulated for by the convention to opening the Inland sea of Simonaska.

The Emperor Napoleon has written a letter to Prince Napoleon strongly censuring his conduct in Corsica. He says the first Napoleon established a severe discipline in the army and then in his government. The Emperor says in the future he will not deviate from the same course.

Latest via Queenstown.—LONDON, May 28.—Prince Napoleon has resigned his post in consequence of the Emperor's letter. The Globe says the Prince is censured for his democratic views generally, but more particularly for uttering hostile sentiments on the Emperor's American policy.

FROM PANAMA.

NEW YORK, June 8.

The steamer Costa Rica brought $570,000 in treasure. The steamer Costa Rica brings Panama dates to the 31st ult. Lieut. Com. Paulding has arrived, and to take command of the sloop of war Cyane.

The gunboat, State of Georgia would leave for Carthagena on the 1st of June, to take on board Gen. Sickles, on his return from Bogota.

The Peruvian war brig Guyasse, with Ex-President Oestela, of Peru, on board as a prisoner, arrived at Panama May 23d. The revolution in Peru appears to be thoroughly quelled by President Pesat, Larna and Arica have been retaken from the revolutionists, and the war vessels re captured.

Greytown advices state that a British steamer is in pursuit of the schooner seized at that place by deserters from the American gunboat State of Georgia. The schooner returned to Greytown for supplies, and sailed again. The harbor of Greytown was again closed up although a channel ten feet deep had been dug out but filled again immediately.

Another revolution had broken out in Salvador, several towns pronouncing in favor of Barris, who was in Panama, and had been sent for to take command of his adherents.

The Panama Herald understands that Juarez had issued letters of marque for vessels on both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, to prey on French commerce. The presence of several armed steam war ships on the Chilian coast, as reinforcements to the Spanish fleet, caused disquietude in Chili.

Gov. Fenton's Welcome Home to the Soldiers.

NEW YORK, June 8.

The return home of all our organizations it is hoped is not far distant. We welcome you, and rejoice with you upon the peace which your valor has achieved. Your honorable scars we regard as the truest badges of your bravery and the highest evidences of the pride and patriotism which animated you. Sadly, yet proudly we receive, as the emblems of heroic endurance, your tattered and worn ensigns, and fondly deposite these relics of glory with all their cherished memories and endearing associations, in your appointed depository.

With swelling hearts we bade Godspeed to the departing recruits, with glowing pride and deepened fervor we say welcome to the returning veterans. We have been with you all through the perilous period of your absence, rejoicing at your victories, and mourning in your defeats. We will treasure your legends, your brave exploits and the glorious memory of your dead comrades, and in records more impressive than the monuments of the past, and as enduring as the liberties you have secured, the people will regard, with jealous pride your welfare and honor, not forgetting the widows and the fatherless, and those who were dependent upon the fallen heroes. The honor and glory you have won for the State and the nation shall be transmitted to our children as a most precious legacy, loving to be cherished and reverently to be preserved.

[Signed] R. F. FENTON.

730 Subscriptions—The Typographical Union.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.

Subscriptions to-day in the 7-30 loan amount to $1,757,250. The largest western subscription was $100,000 from the Second National Bank of Chicago. Eastern subscriptions were, $100,000 from the First National Back of New York; $262,800 from Fiske & Hatch of New York, $250,000 from the First National Bank of Boston.

In the Convention of the Typographical Union to-day, reports were received from the Unions throughout the country. Ten Unions are reported in a flourishing condition. Others report only the prices paid, and some make very bad reports. The Cincinnati Union is reduced one half; the Boston Union is demoralized, there being but one Union office in that city. The St. Louis Union has lost control of the daily papers. The Detroit Union is reported to be in a more flourishing condition than ever before.

The National Typographical Union today decided upon holding their next convention at Chicago.

The Great New York Meeting.

NEW YORK, June 8.

The resolutions adopted last night declared that the agency of the State was chosen for the management of local and domestic affairs, while those of the federal government are chosen to attend to national and foreign affairs; they declared full faith in Andrew Johnson, that treason is the most heinous of crimes and must be punished according to law; thanks to the army and navy, strongly reiterating and endorsing the Monroe doctrine; equal suffrage to white and black, approving first Johnson's refusal to recognize the pretended Governors of the rebel States; expectations of reparation for injuries inflicted upon our commerce by connivance of foreign powers; rejoicing that civil law is soon to bear sway; deprecating party divisions and urging a cordial and united support of the administration. These resolutions were enthusiastically adopted and fully endorsed by the speakers. The meeting was one of the largest ever held in the city, and the reception of General Grant was enthusiastic beyond all precedent.

NORTHWESTERN EXPEDITION.

A Colony for the Yellowstone Country.

GOLD MINING, COMMERCE AND AGRICULTURE.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE

FOR THE

Discharged Officer, Soldier, and the Citizen,

BEING ORGANIZED BY

CAPTAIN JAMES L. FISK,

LATE COMMANDER OF THREE EXPEDITIONS TO MONTANA AND IDAHO.

CIRCULAR.

Having been often importuned, and so often prompted by my own desire, from a thorough knowledge of the subject, to become the medium of possession and development of one of the richest and most magnificent regions of country on the Eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains—the Upper Yellowstone and its surroundings, embracing an area of several hundred miles square—and being now more than ever urged, by letters and personal applications of civilians, officers and soldiers of our Armies away as well as being disbanded, to open for them some field for enterprise and enterprise, I have decided upon the following as a feasible and promising plan for organization and operations, in which I intend to stake my individual fortune with the rest.

I propose to fit out a complete baggage and supply train, camp and garrison equipage, &c., &c., of such dimensions as will provide for the necessities of all who enrol themselves in the Association or Colony, and conform to the 10 requirements hereinafter stated. Also to purchase implements and machinery, and engage competent persons to superintend the inauguration of all branches of the great work following the occupancy of country, such as the laying out of towns, and the distribution of interests therein, systematizing labor, developing the gold and silver mines of the region, encouraging agriculture and the mechanical, and generally to insure success and welfare to those who engage in the enterprise.

The fruitful results of three years devotion to the exploration and settlement of the mountain country of the Northwest, convinces me of the entire practicability of this project.

The richness and ample growth of Bannock and Virginia cities, and the development of other mining points on the East side of the Rocky Mountains within the boundaries of this new territory, among the founders of which were members of my first party in 1862, are facts probably well enough known to all.

It has long been the desire of men familiar with the results of authorized explorations, to occupy and possess the Yellowstone country, but a proud nation of Indians, the "Crows," have thus far persistently kept out the white settlers from their valuable hunting grounds, knowing, and giving as their reason that if the whites were once permitted to dig in their grounds, they (the Indians) would soon be crowded out by a great army of miners. Small parties have tried it, making considerable discoveries, but could not make their foothold.

General Sully is now on the march there, by way of the Black Hills, with a force military force to be garrisoned somewhere on the Yellowstone, and we shall come in to co-operate. With the strength of our party, which will be organized and conducted so as to be as practicable as a military body, we shall encounter no obstacles of moment, and the grit is one worthy of enthusiastic support.

The CAPITAL of such an organization consists necessarily in its concert of action, the elements of industry embodied in the party, and the mutual protection afforded to its interested stake. The expedition and enterprise must be self-sustaining, and in order that it prove successful, the following terms of enrolment and membership are submitted to persons who may contemplate the trip, and from which there will be no deviation.

TERMS.

For subsistence, and transportation of 50 lbs. baggage, besides bedding, for one person, from Minnesota to destination of Colony—citizen ... $125 00

For additional baggage, &c., per cwt ... 25 00

For subsistence and transportation of 50 lbs. baggage, besides bedding, for one person, from Minnesota to destination of Colony—soldier ... 100 00

For additional baggage, &c., per cwt ... 20 00

The same, with horse and equipments furnished—citizen ... 300 00

The same, with horse and equipments furnished—soldier ... 275 00

Families and others availing themselves of the benefits and protection of the expedition, furnishing their own teams and provisions—for each grown person ... 25 00

Certificates calling for subsistence and transportation, as above, and for a larger interest in the Company as below, will be furnished such individual upon receipt of the sum or sums specified.

Gentlemen of means have been urged to form the basis of "THE YELLOWSTONE TOWN AND MINING COMPANY," by subscribing for stock, ... &c. It is intended to obtain a temporary charter for this company at the earliest moment possible, but in any event I regard it as an enterprise which must prove a great source of profit to all who may become shareholders in it. As many of the colony as can should be members of this Company. Books for the Company are opened at my head quarters, where all subscriptions, whether by mail or in person, will be promptly attended to. The officers of the Company are as follows—John Nininger, President, Dan W. Fisk, Secretary, A. Schmidlin, Treasurer. The capital stock is fixed for the present at $5,000, and the number of shares shall be limited to 1,000. The par value of a share in this Company shall be $50, which must be paid in full upon the issue of the certificate, and said share shall be of a certain lot four (4) lots, 50 by 150 feet in the town plot, with also a pro rata interest in the mining operations of said Company.

Wherever the Colony may choose to locate their headquarters, there will this town be established, and this point will in all probability be at the practical head of navigation of that important river. It must inevitably become at once the great supply point for the mines and the larger portion of the Territory; and, as a consequence, a city will spring into being in a very short space of time. When once on the ground of operations, there shall be a meeting called of all the shareholders, when each holder shall have a voice in the election of a Board of Directors, and in ratifying such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the government of the company. It is designed to take out and put into immediate operation in the town, a first class steam saw mill, for the benefit of stockholders; also, a full supply of mining tools for the mutual Company.

The means arising from instalments exacted, both as to the expenses of the Expedition and the operations of the Stock Company, will be provided and to provide and accomplish what is set forth in this circular, and none, who do not conform to the requirements specified, will be recognized as entitled to any of the protection and advantages resulting from this enterprise.

All articles of personal outfit may be readily found in the West, convenient to place of starting, should they not be purchased elsewhere. A man with his family should aim to take with him at least nine months supplies, or the means to provide the same after arriving at destination. The excessive abundance of game in the country to be occupied will greatly relieve the expense of living.

As many persons inquire about the climate of this region, I will say that it is mild, the land and delightful—bearing comparison in many respects to that of Kansas and the Pacific side. The winters are in no way severe, but generally permit of out-door business, and even tending of stock all grazing along in the valleys. The soil is represented as rich and fertile, and as to the truth of these statements and of the existence of paying gold and silver mines, I refer to the testimony of all who have been in that region, I am thus ready to give.

It is not scarcely to be apprehended that employment will be wanting, by any one who goes, and I do not, others should. Determined by his own energy and effort to better his condition. All can not labor, some must blacksmith, some shoemake, some work in wood, &c. &c., and all must find and every inducement is held out with its labors. I think, there will be a field of employment more of labor and enterprise, with mutual dependence, and mutual interests which must secure a common success.

The nature of the rescue and provisions is being duly arranged, and all other conveniences necessary for the comfort of the party will be established, preparatory to the march, at or near St. Cloud, Minnesota, and will be ready by the 15th of July to conduct the party—with a view to starting soon thereafter.

Before leaving the rendezvous, the command will be thoroughly organized, divided into companies of 50 or more each, and an officer, designated with his orderly and commissary sergeants to secure discipline and comfort throughout, and in recruiting for the expedition, any one who reports the names of, and means subscribed by said number of persons, will be furnished transportation and subsistence free, while acting as officer for his detachment.

The discrimination between the citizen and soldier or officer who has served the country on hard terms will be made only in favor of the great struggle now closed, is partly from a fraternal impulse as well as from the fact that I shall have to rely on their aid in the expedition in doing guard and other important duty.

Moneys collected by any recruiting officer or agent who may be designated, should be forwarded to me at St. Paul by Adams Express, taking receipts for the same, notifying me by letter, and enclose a list of names, addresses, &c., to whom I will at once remit receipts of certificates by mail, or have them filled out and retain them until parties arrive in person, if desired.

PERSONAL OUTFIT.

It will be expected of every man to furnish his own outfit, such as fire-arms, clothing, bedding, &c., &c.

FAMILIES.

It is very desirable that a number of good families should form part of this Colony, and I shall with great pleasure exert myself in order to all such every reasonable aid to the journey towards securing their comfort and prosperity, but those who take families should provide their own conveyances, provisions and outfit complete.

In order that the expedition may get under way in due season, it will be necessary for all parties contemplating the journey to act without delay.

The line of march will be across the great Buffalo Prairies to Fort Berthold on the Missouri, thence up the valley of that river to Fort Union; cross the river at that point, and thence up the Yellowstone Valley in point of destination. Distance from St. Cloud, Minn., about 800 miles.

Address me at St. Paul, Minnesota.

THE DEACON'S APOLOGY.

He replied that he was guilty, but hoped, in view of the circumstances he would be excused.

"I may have took a leetle too much sperits, breethren, but I've bin sorely afflicted," he said. "In the first place my old bay mare whom I sot so much store by, was tuck away in crap time-ch, and in the next place he tuck from me my wife, whom I sot more store by if possible, than by the old bay mare-ch, and if I took a leetle too much of the critter to boost my sperits up, I hope my breethren will excuse' me-ch.' ### NEWS ITEMS.

—The Herald's Charleston correspondent says: "Letters from the upper districts represent that great distress has been caused by straggling bands of soldiers taking off every horse and mule, and breaking open public and private stores besides robbing plantations. The planters would rejoice at the appearance of a Union garrison at all principal points, for the protection of the people." General Hartwell, with a portion of his brigade, is at Orangeburg. He has detailed permanent garrisons for the town, and is engaged in furthering arrangements for freedmen, in making contracts with their former owners. Planters are very anxious to secure labor for raising produce. The greater portion of the negroes cannot comprehend their new position. Most of them believed they were to be supported by the Government; others supposed their master's lands were to be divided among them. Large numbers of them are leaving for Charleston.

—The famous Suez Canal has been completed, and was opened on the 7th of April by delegates from the Chambers of Commerce of the World. The canal is seventy-two miles in the length across the Isthmus of Suez, and connects the Mediterranean and Red Seas. Its importance may be inferred from the fact that it shortens the distance between New York and Bombay seven thousand five hundred miles. It puts Napoleon militarily in a position to operate on three continents. It makes Africa an island. The London Times which has always ridiculed the enterprise since its inception, predicts that the attempt to navigate the canal will be a failure, because it is built upon shifting sands.

Before the arrest of Magrath he issued a proclamation suspending his own functions as Executive of the State, stating that the war is over, and it is the duty of the people to forbear an opposition which is hopeless, and reconcile themselves to that submission which the Government of the United States can impose and which they cannot resist. He urges them to resume peaceful pursuits, and says he is ready to meet the charges against him at any time and place. Columbia is garrisoned by the 25th Ohio regiment. The citizens were taking the oath of allegiance in crowds. Other towns in the interior of the State have been properly garrisoned.

—The Birmingham (England) Gazette, asserts that Mrs. Lincoln is a Welch woman. The facts on which this extraordinary assertion is based are thus stated: "It has been ascertained on good authority that Mrs. Lincoln, the wife of the late President, is a native of Monmouthshire. Her maiden name was Jenkins, and her father was for some time sexton of St. Paul's church, Newport. He married a Miss Russell, who was in the employ of Sir Thomas Salisbury, of Llanwern, and the issue of the marriage was two daughters. The family afterwards emigrated to America, and it appears that Mr. Lincoln selected one of them to be his partner in life."

—The St. Petersburg correspondent of a New York paper announces the widely circulated story that the Siberian plague is raging in Russia, a "more gigantic imposition than has been palmed off upon the credulity of Europe since the memorable Teuton hoax." He says the disease is a kind of typhus, occasioned partly by the severe cold, partly by the want of nutritive food among the lower orders, and the dirty state in which they live. The deaths amounted, at one period, to from eighty to one hundred per day.

—On Saturday afternoon by request of his old corps, the 14th, now commanded by Gen. Jeff. C. Davis, Gen Thomas reviewed them at their camp, near this city. He was received with the wildest enthusiasm, the soldiers seeming almost crazy with joy at the opportunity of once more beholding their old commander, whom they almost idolize. Gen. Thomas appeared equally pleased to meet his old command in arms with whom he had fought the battles of Stone River, Chicamauga, and other well contested battle fields which had been immortalized by the heroism and valor of the old 14th.

—It has been proposed in the Cabinet to modify the amnesty proclamation so as to exclude from its benefits all rebels whose property is valued at $10,000 and upwards. This modification will increase the exemption to one hundred and thirty-one thousand. On the $20,000 basis the property of only 30,000 rebels would be liable to confiscation. The calculation is made on the basis of values of property in the South in 1860, treating slave property as extinguished. The proposition has several warm advocates in the Cabinet, yet it is doubtful whether any modification of the proclamation will be made.

—Mr. Lincoln bids fair to be pretty thoroughly biographized. Besides several "lives" by minor celebrities, announcements of the biography of Mr. Lincoln are made, as in preparation, by Robert Dale Owen, Dr. Holland, Mr. Herndon, (Mr. Lincoln's former partner,) Joseph H. Barrett, Commissioner of Pension, and Isaac N. Arnold. We presume James, Fanny Fern, Parton and John S. C. Abbott may be safely added to the number, as their biographical machines are always in grinding order.

—The Pittsburgh Gazette states that Edward Spangler, the stage carpenter, now on trial as an accomplice of Booth, is originally from the borough of York, in Pennsylvania, where he is respectfully connected. He has of late years led a chequered and uncertain life. His habits have been intemperate and he has been marked for his studied hostility to the Government and his personal hatred of the deceased President.

—The reason why the rebel cotton loan is quoted at all in England (12 to 14 being the figures) is that there is an idea in the heads of certain persons that the cotton on which the loan was founded is still in the South, ready to be shipped to the advantage of holders of scrip as soon as the ports are opened. John Bull will find out his great mistake in brief time; he will never see a dollar of the $15,000,000 he invested in helping the rebels, and we are glad of it.

—The French Minister has not yet delivered Eugenie's letter of condolence to Mrs. Lincoln, though he received it some time ago.

We still find the above item going the rounds of the press. It is all wrong. As we have already stated on the very best authority, the letter of condolence from the Empress of the French was delivered to Mrs. Lincoln before she left Washington for Chicago.—Chicago Journal.

—In the course of Hon. E. B. Washburne's lecture, on Thursday evening last, he read to the audience an extract of a letter received by him recently from Gen. Grant, in which the statement is made that he considers Galena his home, and that he intends to cast his next vote there, as he did his last one. The most hearty applause followed the announcement.

—The Herald's Charleston correspondent reports the arrest of Gov. Magrath on the 27th ult., for high treason. He was taken to Hilton Head and would soon be taken North for trial. He surrendered himself quietly to Lieut. Beck, who was sent to arrest him. Wade Hampton escaped. His whereabouts is unknown.

GEN. SHERMAN IN NEW YORK.

The Popular Feeling Towards Him.

From the New York Times, June 3.

Gen. W. T. Sherman arrived in this city yesterday morning, at seven o'clock, and immediately proceeded to the residence of his entertainer, James Scott, Esq., No. 64 East Twenty-third street. The General kept himself quite secluded and quiet the better part of the day, but rode in a carriage to the Central Park in the afternoon, and his presence created quite a sensation among the thousands congregated there. Gen. Sherman was accompanied by members of Mr. Scott's family.

In the vicinity of Mr. Scott's residence in Twenty-third street, small knots of eager people could be seen all day and evening, perforce content to satisfy their curiosity by a view of the outside of the dwelling. Last night the house was brilliantly lighted up, and many visitors passed in and out.

In the evening the General visited Niblo's garden, to witness the brilliant impersonation of Fanchon, by Miss Maggie Mitchell. The appearance of Gen. Sherman in the theatre was the signal for cheering on the part of all who saw him. He was accompanied by Gen Van Vliet, and seemingly was much interested in the play. The crowd getting impatient between the acts, the general beat his first retreat, and, by the help of the rear entrance, gained Crosby street, and so escaped his admirers.

After a few hours spent at the residence of Gen. Van Vliet, both generals returned on foot to Twenty-third street, where they found a little knot of loungers awaiting the arrival of Gen. Sherman, and anticipating a serenade.

Just before entering the house, the general turned to the crowd below, and the following dialogue ensued:

Gen Sherman—Well, boys, I suppose you have come here to see me, and I am much obliged to you. [Cries of "Speech."] I am not going to make any speech in New York; so you need not expect any.

Crowd—"But, General, we want to see your face."

Gen Sherman—"Well, I am going down town to-morrow and you can see me by daylight."

Voice—"But we want to see you now or let us shake your hand, General."

The General then amiably stepped down and commenced shaking hands with the crowd—nearly fifty in all—among the last, several ladies of the neighborhood. He ended by shaking hands with the two policemen detailed to preserve order, and thanked them for their friendly protection of him. As he was ascending the steps some one called out: "We are not so large as your army, are we, General?"

"No indeed," replied Gen. Sherman, "I've got one hundred thousand men—the best men you ever saw."

He then went into Mr. Scott's dwelling and the little crowd dispersed. No serenade had taken place when our reporter left at 12.30 P. M.

Another Link in the Conspiracy.

The following is the full text of a curious letter, a portion of which we published yesterday. It doesn't amount to much as evidence, and its authenticity may be fairly doubted; but it may, nevertheless, be all it purports to be:

THOS. DUFEL'S TESTIMONY.

Thos. Dufel testified he lived in Washington, and while recently in Morehead City, N. C., picked up a letter addressed to John A. Wise. The letter was floating in the water, near the Government wharf, and it read as follows:

WASHINGTON, April 15, 1865.—Dear John—I am happy to inform you that Pet has done his work well. He is safe, and old Abe is in hell. Now, sir, all eyes are on you. You must bring Sherman; Grant is in the hands of old Gray ere this; Red Shoes showed a lack of nerve in Seward's case, but he fell back in good order; Johnson must come. Old Crook has him in charge. Mind well that brother's oath, and you will have no difficulty. All are well and safe and will enjoy the fruits of our labors. We had a large meeting last night. All were bent in carrying out the programme to the letter. The rails are laid for the safe exit of old L. Always behind last facts at City Point. Now I say again, the lives of our brothers, of force and life of the South depend upon carrying this programme into effect. No. two will give you this. It is ordered that no more letters shall be sent by mail. When you write sign no real name and send by some of our friends who are coming home. We want you to write us how the news was received there. We receive great encouragement from all quarters. I hope there will be no getting weak in the knees. I was in Baltimore yesterday. Pet had not got there. Your folks are well and have heard from you. Don't loose your nerve."

The witness knew nothing of the person to whom the letter was addressed; said he knew nothing of the key to the cipher, but that they commenced with the date and began to make it out; had no acquaintance with the cipher till he came to Washington; the letter did not seem to have been long in the water.

JAMES FERGUSON'S TESTIMONY.

James Ferguson testified he was with the last witness when the letter was found. Ferguson saw it first and called attention to it.

The Working Men of Europe to President Johnson.

From the New York Tribune, 31.

We have received from a London friend the following Address to President Johnson, by the International Council of the Working Men of Europe on the assassination of President Lincoln, which, we presume, has by this time reached its destination:

To Andrew Johnson, President of the United States.

SIR: The demon of the "peculiar institution," for the supremacy of which the South rose in arms, would not allow his worshipers to honorably succumb in the open field. What he had begun in treason he must needs end in infamy. As Philip II.'s war for the Inquisition bred a Gerard, thus Jefferson Davis' pro-slavery war a Booth.

It is not our part to call words of sorrow and horror, while the heart of two worlds heaves with emotion. Even the sycophants, who year after year, and day by day, stuck to their nefarious work of morally assassinating Abraham Lincoln, and the great Republic he headed, stand now aghast at the universal outburst of popular feeling, and vie with each other in strewing rhetorical flowers on his open grave. They have now, at last, found out that he was a man neither to be browbeaten by adversity nor intoxicated by success, inflexibly pressing on to his great goal, never compromising it by blind haste; slowly maturing his steps; never retracing them; carried away by no surge of popular favor; disheartened by no slackening of the popular pulse; tempering stern acts by the gleam of a kind heart; illuminating scenes dark with passion, by the smile of humor; doing his Titanic work as humbly and homely as heaven-born rulers do little things with the grandiloquence of pomp and state—in one word, one of the rare men who succeed in becoming great without ceasing to be good. Such, indeed, was the modesty of this great and good man that the world only discovered him a hero after he had fallen a Martyr.

To be singled out, by the side of such a chief, the second victim to the infernal gods of slavery, was an honor due to Mr. Seward. Had he not, at a time of general hesitation, the sagacity to foresee and the manliness to foretell "the irrepressible conflict?" Did he not, in the darkest hours of that conflict, prove true to the Roman duty to never despair of the Republic and its stars? We earnestly hope that he and his son will be restored to health, public activity, and well-deserved honors, within much less than "ninety days."

After a tremendous civil war,—but which, if we consider its vast dimensions and its broad scope, and compare it to the Old World's 150 years' wars, can hardly be said to have lasted ninety days,—yours, sir, has become the task to uproot by the law what has been felled by the sword—to preside over the arduous work of political reconstruction and social regeneration. A profound sense of your great mission will save you from any compromise with stern duties. You will never forget that, to initiate the new era of the Emancipation of Labor, the American People devolved the responsibilities of leadership upon two men of labor; the one, Abraham Lincoln, the other Andrew Johnson.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF THE INTERNATIONAL WORKINGMEN'S ASSOCIATION, LONDON, MAY 13, 1865.

Presbyterian General Assembly.

The meeting of this great religious body at Brooklyn, recently, was one of unusual interest. Among the incidents of the meeting worthy of note, we extract the following:

COLORED MINISTERS.

The most telling speech thus far has fallen from negro lips; and when Mr. Reeve sat down, the next white man's voice sounded harsh and unmusical—Reeve is a finer declaimer than Douglass, well educated, modest, manly and without a solitary streak of Saxon blood in his ebony visage. His fine speech told powerfully in favor of the subsequent motion to recommend our government to grant free suffrage to the black loyalists of the South. The other colored member of the Assembly—Thompson, of Newark, N. J., brought down the house by saying, "we negroes prefer our own preachers. I once asked a white man to preach for me, and he did very well until he came to the closing prayer,—'Oh, Lord, we know that in thy sight a black man's soul is as precious as a white man's'—and that just spoiled it all. The fact is, brethren, there is a great prejudice among the blacks toward the white race." This capital sally was greeted with a roar.

INTENSELY LOYAL.

The grand striking feature of this assembly has been its intense loyalty, and equally intense anti-slavery utterances. The atmosphere of the Plymouth Church never burned with a fiercer glow for liberty. When the commissioners from East Tennessee appeared, and asked to be re-admitted to the general Assembly, they were welcomed with open arms. Our friend Samuel Sawyer (who was exiled from Tennessee for denouncing slavery in 1857) told his artless tale of the sufferings of those "hunted partridges" among the mountains. All hearts melted; the Tennessean presbyteries were re-admitted by a rising vote; Dr. Adams led in sublime thanksgiving to God, and the Doxology was sung on the spot. When Dr. Spear, after the passage of his powerful paper on the "sin of treason," exclaimed, "I would hang Jefferson Davis, I would hang Gen. Lee, and would keep on hanging the leading traitors until the judicial arm of the government has as fully vindicated Union, liberty, and law as have the swords of Grant and Sherman," the house thundered out their approbation. The culmination of this enthusiasm was reached this morning, when Dr. Spear presented his trenchant report in favor of

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.

A member from the shores of Lake Champlain expressed some honest doubts as to the expediency of an immediate investiture of the Southern freedmen with the rights of citizenship. This brought out half a dozen rejoinders, hot quick and telling as a volley of canister. Thompson, the colored commissioner, claimed for his race an organic equality with the whites. "We are practically inferior," said he, "because we have never been put into practice; but a natural foundational inferiority we will never admit." Herrick Johnson, of Pittsburgh, in a few vehement sentences, protested that every oppressing race had charged the victims of their wrongs with generic inferiority. J. Ford Sutton gave a brief, touching photograph of the loyal blacks at the tent doors of our soldiers, weeping over Union defeats or jubilant over our victories; he claimed that the lingering treason of the South could only be smothered under negro ballots. "You are all setting in one direction" said the moderator, "why not take the vote?" The vote was taken; one loud majestic "aye" sounded through the spacious church; not a solitary "nay" was whispered, and then the whole assembly rose to their feet and sung, "My country, 'tis of thee!" This made the record of the assembly complete. They have voted unanimously to sustain the Government in punishing treason—to exclude every rebel minister from church fellowship until he repent and forswear disloyalty—to establish home missions among the freedmen, and to recommend the fullest rights of citizenship to the black loyalists of the South! Need any member of this assembly blush to meet his constituents?

—The Judges of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia have determined to try Jeff. Davis, on the indictment found last Friday, before a full bench, Judge Carter presiding. There is reason to believe that the trial will take place on or about the 15th of this month, unless the defendant can make a showing of necessity for postponing the hearing for a few days. It is not believed, moreover, that Jeff. Davis will interpose any objection to a trial this month, as the facts involved in the case are patent and indisputable; and were such a thing permissible in a criminal trial, the case could be heard upon an agreed statement of facts. The trial cannot occupy more than three or four days in the impaneling of the jury and presentation of evidence; any further prolongation will depend on the length of arguments of counsel.

—The Madison Capitol says: The amount of Wisconsin currency withdrawn during the past three months is $2,466,631. The amount yet in circulation is $702,510, of which $578,427 is in the bills of banks which redeem at par, and $134,083 in bills of banks that are winding up. The currency outstanding is secured to the amount of $783,996—or about $81,000 more than the circulation. Of this amount of security $501,200 are in Wisconsin bonds, the balance in other bonds, treasury notes and coin.

—President Johnson has appointed Dr. Albert G. Mackay, the eminent writer on masonry, collector of the customs at Charleston, S. C. This is a graceful and deserved acknowledgment of Mr. Mackay's devotion to the union during the rebellion, and a partial remuneration for his losses thereby.

—The directors of the crystal palace have engaged Mlle. Adelina Patti for the whole of the coming Handel festival. The terms are stated to be enormous.

Special Notices.

For the Army, for the Navy, and for Every One.

The world is so inundated now with medicines of every description which are warranted cures for every known and unknown species of disease, that the sufferer finds it almost impossible to distinguish between good and bad. Some of these wonderful fluids profess to cure every complaint known to the Materia Medica. In speaking of Hostetter's Bitters, we refer to a preparation which limits itself to one department of the body—the stomach—the irregularities and disorders of which it not only claims to cure, but does. Its reputation has become world-wide, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic, in both hemispheres, and in every latitude and zone, it is known and employed as a remedial agent.

Persons who have been repeatedly deceived, perhaps, cannot be convinced that Hostetter's Bitters will effect sure, rapid, and permanent cures. But this assertion is confirmed by testimonial letters from the most distinguished men in the country. All who have once used these Bitters keep them now by their side as a safeguard, believing that "an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

The digestive organs which have been violated and prostrated by excessive or irregular indulgence of appetite, will be restored to their normal condition by the use of this wonderful medicine.—Boston Traveller. jan6-d&w-1w

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty which will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent, but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heart-burn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. Sold by all respectable Dealers in Medicines.

U.S. 7-30 LOAN

THIRD SERIES,

$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, the undersigned, the General Subscription Agent for the sale of United States Securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7-30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15, 1865, and are payable three years from that date in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.
GOLD-BEARING BONDS.

These Bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum to their value, according to the rate levied upon other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The Interest at 7.30 per cent. amounts to

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| One cent | per day | on a | $50 | note. |
| Two cents | " | " | $100 | " |
| Ten | " | " | $500 | " |
| 20 | " | " | $1,000 | " |
| $1 | " | " | $5,000 | " |

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The Notes of this Third Series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent., instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven-thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent. in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET

Now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the Great Popular Loan of the People.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the Loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

WANTED—AGENTS, $60 TO $200 PER MONTH. Agents wanted, male and female, to introduce the celebrated and beautiful NEW ENGLAND FAMILY SEWING MACHINES, in all cities and towns through Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. We have now greater facilities for manufacturing a superior Machine than ever before, notwithstanding the thousands that are sold annually, the demand continues unabated. A real energetic Agent can positively make more money in selling these invaluable Machines than any other business they can follow. Price $18.

N. B.—Excellent testimonials have been received, showing they now rank throughout the country as far superior to any low priced Machine manufactured, and that they stand in good repute. None but the very best will be kept and delivered, and every one warranted for three years. Agents will oblige us by being as brief as possible in their correspondence. (Send for Circulars.)

$1,000 REWARD for a more beautiful or stronger seam made by any large or small Machine in the United States than can be sewed on the Improved "New England Family." You can cut every third stitch of this sewing and then we will give you a machine if you can pull the cloth apart without tearing it. Call on or address with stamp, HAMILTON PECK, Gen. Agt. 197 East Water St., room 1, Milwaukee, Wis.

CAUTION.—Beware of all Agents traveling through the country, selling Machines having the same name as ours, unless they are our duly authorized agents. We have the only genuine IMPROVED NEW ENGLAND SEWING MACHINE in the United States, and we feel it our duty to caution the public against imposition by parties who would seek to use the name and popularity of our Machine to enable them to sell an inferior article. ma30-6m

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetiser. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially EXEMPTED FROM STAMP TAX by the United States government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard REMEDY by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system, and act like a charm when taken according to directions, as a remedy for the following diseases — Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Affections, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

FOR Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters, once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity, so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

Ladies, who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters, have him send for them. Remember the name, and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS.

The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical Journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession, are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

NEWS ITEMS.

—The World's Washington special says the Mexican Emperor has started an emigration scheme similar to the one recently advertised here by agents of Juarez. It is known that agents of Maximilian were arriving at New Orleans on the 27th of May. Probably several had been dispatched before that time. Agents have been sent directly to London, Paris and other European capitals, while appeals will also be made to the Canadian public. The work of these agents is to advertise extensively inducements to Mexican emigration. They are authorized to grant to every emigrant who will swear fealty to the Mexican Emperor three hundred acres of the best land, or five sections of mining territory in the Empire.

—Sheridan assumes command of the Military Division of the Southwest, embracing the country West of the Mississippi and South of the Arkansas rivers. Generals Canby and Sheridan have issued orders permitting cotton to be brought to market without military interference. Gen Canby has divided the Department of the Gulf into the following four Divisions: Louisiana, headquarters at New Orleans; Mississippi, Jackson; Alabama, Montgomery; Florida, Tallahassee. The citizens of Louisiana appear much gratified by the programme of the new military authorities.

— A Washington special says: No one here understands the case of Benjamin J. Harris, member elect of Congress from Maryland, as effectually concluded by the President's remission of the sentence passed by court martial. The matter will be brought before Congress, where the same proofs that were adduced in the late trial case will be produced, or stronger offered, which will show Harris' disloyalty beyond a doubt. He will not be likely to dishonor the next Congress by his presence there as one of its members.

— The World's Washington special contradicts the statement that the French Minister withheld a letter addressed by the Empress Eugenia to Mrs. Lincoln. It says "the letter in question was delivered to the Acting Secretary of State, Mr. Hunter, more than ten days ago, immediately upon its receipt. Mrs Lincoln's reply when received will be transmitted in like manner to the Empress, whose letter, like that of Queen Victoria's expresses in terms of graceful and womanly sympathy the unanimous feeling of all civilized people on hearing of the savage act of the 14th of April."

—The Tribune's Washington special says: It is not true that Jeff. Davis has been brought from Fortress Monroe. The President on Saturday told a Congressman it seemed desirable that Davis be tried by a civil court for high treason as a perpetual reminder that treason was our highest crime, and he was willing to spread before the world the secret testimony in the assassination case, and trust to their verdict as to Davis complicity.

—A special to the Commercial, dated Washington 5th, says: "The Mexican question once more attracts attention, Gen. Steele having been ordered to the Rio Grande with an army of observation of 30,000 men. The Foreign Ambassadors are greatly perplexed at the movement. It is understood that Count Montholon will demand an explanation from the State Department."

—The Toronto Globe announces that the Canadian delegates in England are meeting with marked success. The policy proposed to include a basis on which the connection between England and Canada will be rendered firm and lasting, and includes measures to immensely enhance the prosperity of the country and develop its resources.

—The Courier says Gov. Magrath was arrested by a Lieutenant and two soldiers and taken to Charleston. A great body of the most respectable citizens waited on him expressing their sympathy and respect. That such an occurrence should be permitted in the capital of the State is conclusive as to the complete, general and physical prostration of the people.

—News have been received in Milwaukee of the death of Judge A. D. Smith on his way from South Carolina, where he has been in the employ of the Government for the past four years. He was one of the first settlers of Milwaukee.

—The Times says: "The United States Telegraph Company have contracted with thoroughly reliable parties to build two more lines of telegraph from St. Louis and Chicago to San Francisco. The lines from eastern cities to Denver City, and from San Francisco to Virginia City are to be finished this autumn, and the whole line is to be completed the following autumn.

—Gov. Brown was released under a pledge to go home and work earnestly for the restoration of Georgia to her allegiance.

THE CITY.

ORPHAN ASYLUM.

Organization of a Protestant Institution.

A number of the ladies of Saint Paul have been meeting for several weeks for the purpose of consultation as to the best means of establishing a Protestant Orphan Asylum in this city. They have organized themselves into a body consisting of President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, and eight managers. A committee has been appointed to canvass the various wards of the city and solicit subscriptions and donations to aid in this very desirable enterprise. The annual subscription is placed at the low amount of two dollars, in order that all may have an opportunity of contributing, although this is by no means intended to limit any one's benevolence, as it is expected and wished that donations to any amount may be made by those so inclined.

The object of an Orphan Asylum is so well known that it would be useless to make any statement as to its desirableness, and we therefore leave it to the benevolence of the citizens of Saint Paul, whether this enterprise begun by the ladies of our various Protestant churches shall fail for want of their assistance, or whether this present small beginning shall form the nucleus of a wide spread system of charity embracing in years to come our whole State.

The officers appointed for the year, beginning May 31st, 1865, are as follows:

President—Mrs. Walter Webb.
Vice-President—Mrs. S. Y. McMasters.
Treasurer—Mrs. John Mattocks.
Secretary—Miss Postlethwait.

MANAGERS.

Mrs. Charles Oakes, Mrs. Wm. Hollinshead,
Mrs. John Nichols, Mrs. Wm. L. Banning,
Mrs. W. W. Singleton, Mrs. Horace Thompson,
Mrs. J. H. Stewart, Mrs. Richard Marvin.

SOLICITING COMMITTEE.

First Ward.—Mrs. Mattocks, Mrs. Parker Paine.

Second Ward.—Mrs. E. F. Drake, Mrs. Wm. Murray, Mrs. W. W. Singleton.

Third Ward.—Mrs. T. D. Simonton, Mrs. Earle Goodrich, Miss Marvin.

Fourth Ward.—Mrs. Charles Nichols, Miss Seabury.

Fifth Ward.—Mrs. Horace Thompson, Mrs. S. Breed, Mrs. O. D. Strong.

West St. Paul.—Mrs. James, Mrs. Guiteau.

Dayton's Bluff.—Mrs. J. H. Hale.

Soldier's Home.—The arrangements for this much needed institution are now nearly completed. Three large rooms upon the first floor of Mackubins Block have been rented and placed in good order. The room on Fourth street will be used as a kitchen, one of the rooms on Washington street as a dining room and the other for sleeping. The rooms are large and airy, cool even in the hottest weather, and a better selection in the city could not be made. L. C Dunn, a faithful soldier, has been detailed to take charge of the rooms. An ambulance will run between the levee and the House, so that soldiers when they arrive will find no difficulty in reaching it. Particular care will be taken of the sick.

Many thanks are due to the Executive Committee who have labored earnestly in organizing this institution; to the military authorities who have heartily co-operated with them and rendered great aid, and to the liberality of our citizens in donating several hundred dollars to set the Home in motion.

I. O. O. F.—The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of this State assembled in this city on Wednesday morning, and closed its session yesterday afternoon.

The reports of the various Lodges, and of the retiring officers, show the Order in this State to be in very flourishing circumstances.

The following are the officers for the ensuing year:

Grand Master—John White, of Hastings.
Dep. do—W. G. Dye, of Winona.
Grand Warden—William Wedel, of Winona.
Grand Secretary—David Ramaley, of St. Paul.
Grand Treasurer—Henry W. Shroer, of St. Paul.
Grand Chaplain—Rev. J. B. Burbank, of Preston.
Grand Conductor—J. N. Treadwell, of St. Peter.
Grand Marshal—A Hartsell, of Rochester
Grand Guardian—A Newsalt, of Owatonna.

Warren Powers, Esq., of Winona, was chosen delegate to the Grand Lodge of the United States.

The next session will be held in this city in June, 1866.

Crops.—We received a call yesterday from Mr. C. S. Olney, of Illinois, who has just been traveling through Southern Ohio and Indiana. He reports the wheat in those sections good. The apple and entire fruit crop has been injured by the frost and will be less than the average. Peaches have suffered the least. Thousands of acres in the Southern portion of those States which the farmers have set apart for corn, still remain unplanted, owing to the wet weather. Corn-planting has also been much delayed in Illinois, owing to rains, and Mr. Olney was quite surprised on reaching Wisconsin and Minnesota to find the corn out of the ground and growing finely.

Correction.—The girl whose conviction of larceny was mentioned in yesterday's Press, gave her name to the Justice as Ellen Glenn, and we so published it. It is now stated that her right name is Ellen Wilson, and at all events it is not Glenn. Ellen Glenn is the name of another girl in the city who had no connection with the transactions mentioned, but either from a desire to injure her or to shield herself, the thief gave the name of an innocent party. With this change of name the facts are correct as stated.

Duel.—We understand that a duel is in contemplation between two young bloods of this city. As usual, in such cases, a hoop skirt is at the bottom of the muss, whether duplex elliptic or not, we are not informed. Preliminary notes have passed between the parties but the arrangements may not be consummated for a day or two. We can pledge the readers of the Press a full description of the heroic affair.

Indians at the Fair.—We learn from W. L. Wilson, Esq., who returned from Chicago yesterday, that the dozen Chippewas who went down to the Northwestern Fair from this State, are drawing largely. They have a room set apart for their performances where they go through their war dance, and other Indian gyrations greatly to the delight of the "eastern barbarians." The daily receipts from this part of the show averaged $150. This adds a great deal to the Minnesota Department of the Fair.

Hope Chapel.—We are requested to announce to the public a Promenade Concert for the benefit of Hope Chapel, to be given by the ladies of the Congregation, during the Strawberry season. Due notice will be given of time and place.

Tickets to include admission and refreshment.

Personal.—Walter G. Dye, Esq., of the Winona Republican, who has been spending several days in the city, leaves for home this morning.

GEN. SHERMAN IN NEW YORK.

He Rides Down Broadway and is Recognized by the Crowd—Visits the Metropolitan Bank, Astor House, Wall Street and other Places—Interesting Interview at Gen. Van Vliet's Office—Brilliant Private Reception at Mr. Scott's Residence Last Night—The General Serenaded by the Seventh and Thirty-Seventh Regiment Bands—He Makes Two Characteristic Speeches, &c., &c.

The vicinity of Mr. Scott's residence in Twenty-third street was crowded yesterday morning by an anxious crowd, eager to catch a glimpse of General Sherman. As early as six o'clock parties were to be found on the sidewalks, and they waited patiently for hours until the General made his appearance. Generals Rosecrans, Dix and Strong called and paid their respects at an early hour. Members of the Union League Club also waited upon him and requested his attendance at his rooms this evening, which invitation he accepted. Our citizens will then have a chance of seeing and shaking hands with the gallant soldier.

Numbers of persons continued to pour into the parlors, and it required the efforts of several policemen to keep order outside and restrain the crowd from rushing in.

Between eleven and twelve o'clock, General Sherman, in company with Mr. Scott, entered a carriage, making his way with great difficulty through the crowd, amid a torrent of cheers, and drove across Twenty-third street and down Broadway to the Metropolitan Hotel, where he had an interview with the members of his staff. After a delay here of a few minutes, the General re-entered his carriage and proceeded to the Metropolitan Bank, corner of Broadway and Wall street, where he transacted some private business. The news soon passed through the crowd that Sherman was around, and soon hundreds had assembled on the sidewalk in front of the bank. In a short time General Sherman appeared on the steps, which was a signal for enthusiastic cheering. All supposed that he would make a speech, but their hopes were doomed to disappointment, for the General expressed himself entirely unwilling to make speeches. From this point he proceeded to the Exchange, and here also received a most cordial welcome. While driving through Wall street his carriage was followed by a large crowd, who cheered along the route. The words flew about, "There goes General Sherman," and as the carriage advanced the crowd increased. The "bulls and bears" fought with their accustomed desperation to get a look at the man who had so effectually aided in knocking gold down to something very near its par value. The man who, from the distant strongholds of Atlanta, Charleston and Savannah, had dictated terms, not to the rebels alone, but to the gold speculators and stock gamblers, was now passing quietly through his latter field of operations. He was conqueror in Wall street as well as at Atlanta, Charleston and Savannah. The name of Sherman had ever brought startling tidings into the Gold Room and the Exchange. The thundering of his artillery had equal effect on the bulls of Georgia as amid the commercial precincts of Wall street.

During the day General Sherman also called at the Astor House to see Mr. Stetson, who is a personal acquaintance. Here he was introduced to a number of gentlemen, guests of the hotel, with whom he conversed in a spirited strain for some time. The crowd outside and in the passage ways was, of course, as large as at any other point of the General's visitations.

GEN. SHERMAN'S VISIT TO GENERAL VAN VLIET.

One of General Sherman's first visits yesterday morning was to his old friend and West Point classmate, General Stewart Van Vliet, at the Quartermaster's office, State street. The meeting was as warm and pleasurable as if it were the first time the friends had grasped hands since the culmination of those series of brilliant victories which have crowned one with imperishable renown, and imparted, as a patriot and friend, such unalloyed pleasure to the other. It was a soldier's greeting—fervid, impulsive and genuine. As he neared the buildings he was recognized in his carriage by a soldier, and in an instant the announcement went forth, the cheering commenced, and the moment the carriage stopped it was surrounded. In General Van Vliet's office he was waited upon by some merchants from the Corn Exchange, who pressingly invited him to visit the mart near at hand, where corn merchants most do congregate, but all their solicitations were declined, the General touching upon their desire to hear him speak very humorously. He wasn't to be cornad or cornered in that way; he hadn't time for meetings or speechmaking, or getting on platforms; he thought the best platform was the Lord's Prayer. This seemed to corner the Exchange deputation, who changed their base immediately.

During his stay at General Van Vliet's office, upwards of an hour, he conversed principally with General (Baldy) Smith—one also who will leave a bright record on the page of history. General Sherman speaks very rapidly, and sketches with his pencil as he describes a point on some hard-fought field, where he won against the odds, as at Bentonville, quite rapidly, and with a nervousness evincing that on knotty disquisitions he would prefer to use his hand first and his tongue afterwards. He spoke of General Johnston's bearing throughout the armistice negotiation as gentlemanly and honorable, and free from all artifice or deceit. He had a laugh, however, at the expense of his late foe the next moment. Gen. Van Vliet handed him a copy of Gen. Patterson's 1861 campaign in Maryland, on which General Smith repeated a saying of General Johnston, when he contemplated to steal a march upon or fight Patterson just previous to the first Bull Run. Johnston is reported to have said afterwards, referring to this, "I had to fight him or to fool him, and I did the latter."

"Yes," said General Sherman, "Joe thought he would fight me, too, or fool me; he tossed the former and he tried the latter; but he didn't do it—and Joe is no fool, I tell you. He is a smart man, and a daring one." From a ready but evanescent burst of merriment at this the General proceeded to speak of his victorious troops in a somewhat slower strain. He is evidently deeply attached to his Georgia legions. He gave the palm to Western men for adaptability in making good soldiers; but, said he, the Eastern troops, after the necessary service, cannot be excelled; and he noted the achievements of the Twentieth corps at Peach Tree creek in proof of this. The historic bummers of the campaign of the Carolinas came in for a full share of the General's humor, and he recounted some of their exploits with a naivete and a heartiness that would have cheered the hearts of a bivouac fire circle. These men, he said, were of the greatest service. They were not stragglers, as was at first supposed, but an organized, properly officered body, who kept in advance and on the flanks of his widely extended columns.

Gen. Van Vliet remarked that he was surprised he had not suffered more between his column than he had. Yes, Sherman replied, you might be surprised but the bummers were everywhere, and fought like devils everywhere. The bummer badge worn by the General, gave rise, by a simple reference to it, to the subject of the army badges generally. It was in the Army of the Mississippi that badges were first displayed; but they became so popular at once among the troops that each corps had its separate and distinctive badge allotted to it. The selection of a badge in some instances was a matter of taste, sometimes as symbolical of a claim of precedence put forth by the men. That of the Fifteenth corps (Logan's) was due to the Irishman who, when asked what corps he belonged to, replied, "why, to the Fifteenth, to be sure." "Then where's your badge?" was the next query. "My badge, is it—what's that?" Why a badge to distinguish your corps; something like this." "Like that, is it? Oh, be jabers, then my badge is here behint me, my darlint—my cartridge box and forty rounds."

And true enough added the General, laughing. Logan adopted Paddy's cartridge box as his corps badge, and a very appropriate one it is too for himself and his brave boys.

During this conversation, or rather chit chat, between Generals Sherman and Smith, several gentlemen from time to time entered the office, whom Geo. Van Vliet, with ready courtesy and blandness, introduced to General Sherman. But these interruptions would never break the thread of his discourse, or cause him to loose the point of his anecdote, to which he would return, resuming look and tone in an instant, whatever the subject, grave or gay. General Van Vliet also rather more formally introduced the several Assistant Quartermasters and other officers connected with the depot to the General, who, looking round upon the assemblage, remarked, laughing, "Why, Van, you run a big machine here."

During his stay the crowd increased outside, and several times, in answer to calls loud and frequent, the General showed himself at the window and bowed. At last, when he rose to leave, the whole street was blocked up, and it was with difficulty he could reach his carriage with the help of some policemen, who were fortunately on hand when wanted. The windows of the carriage were assailed, and brawny hands tugged at him for a shake. Cheer after cheer went up for General Sherman, who was, with some danger to his admirers, drawn out of the crowd.

Major and Assistant Adjt General.

The Indianapolis Journal says:

General Hovey received the dispatch announcing the commutation of Bowles and Milligan's sentence to imprisonment for life on Wednesday morning, but with strict injunctions that it should only be communicated to the public at the gallows on Friday, and they were deprived of a wholesome shock, and the public of a dramatic sensation by the prying curiosity of some person in Washington, who learned the facts, and telegraphed them to Mr. Hendricks on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. H. being under no obligations to secrecy, made them public.

Sale of Army Mules.
QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 28, 1865.
MANY THOUSANDS OF MULES are being disposed of at public sale, at Washington.
The sales will continue until the number of animals is reduced in proportion to the reduction of the armies, now going on rapidly.
There are in the armies of the the Potomac, of the Tennessee, and of Georgia, probably FOUR THOUSAND OF THE FINEST SIX MULE TEAMS IN THE WORLD
Many of them were bought in the beginning of the war, as young mules, accompanied the armies in all their marches and camps, and are thoroughly broken, hardened by exercise, gentle and familiar, from being so long surrounded by the soldiers.
The whole South is stripped of farming stock, and the North also has suffered from the drain of animals, taken to supply the armies
These animals are sold at public auction. THEY WILL NOT BRING ANYTHING LIKE THEIR TRUE VALUE, and such opportunities for farmers to get working animals in stock their farms, and for drovers and dealers in stock to make good speculations, by purchasing them and disposing of them in the South, will never occur again.
